Fast Gettysburg Trip

Police Report Ike Won't Get A Ticket

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The police made it official today—President Eisenhower isn't going to get any ticket for hitting 70-75 miles an hour on that trip to Gettysburg yesterday.

In fact, the police vow they did not even "observe" the President's car going that fast, and as far as they are concerned the incident is closed.

They did observe three press cars traveling hard in Eisenhower's wake, however, and forced them to slow down to a legal 55 m.p.h. for a time.

Then the press cars had to zoom up to 100 m.p.h. to catch up with the four White House limousines. Reporters assigned to cover the President are supposed to keep up with him when he is out in public and the Secret Service men are aware of this.

Presidential news secretary James Hagerty, obviously disturbed by newsmen's on-the-spot accounts of yesterday's incident, brought up the subject at his news conference this morning.

He said he had received an unsolicited telephone call from Col. James S. McAuliffe, superintendent of police in Montgomery County, Md., through which lies the route to Gettysburg.

'Shocked' at Criticism

Deramus Has Year's Contract To Rescue the Katy Railroad

ST. LOUIS, March 30 (AP)—William N. Deramus III has a one-year contract as president to save the Missouri-Kansas-Texas (Katy) Railroad, the Globe-Democrat said today.

"I could have had a longer contract, but I wanted to be able to decide myself at the end of the year whether I want to stay or not," Deramus said in an interview with the Globe-Democrat's Ted Schfers.

Deramus said he was "shocked" at the storm of criticism resulting from the railroad's recent drastic force reductions and shifts. Offices here and at Parsons, Kan., were closed with no advance notice to employees.

Congressmen have asked for an investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce has expelled the Katy for "violating responsible business practices."

"A lot of people who are denouncing me," he declared, "don't know the fact which caused us to act as we did."

Deramus said "we have not had

The dedication will begin with the regular procession to the school for the dedication then the procession to the church for the address and mass.

At about 5:15 p.m. a banquet will be held in the school's new cafeteria where a short program will be presented with the principal address to be given by his excellency, the Bishop.

Entertainment will be furnished by the Sacred Heart Glee Club and the parish choir.

The new brick building has 11 classrooms, four grade school rooms and seven high school rooms and a complete newly installed cafeteria.

Asks Return Assistance by Labor Leaders

Will Cooperate In Investigation By AFL-CIO Council

WASHINGTON, March 30

(AP)—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) pledged full cooperation today with the AFL-CIO investigation of Teamsters President Dave Beck and any other labor efforts to rid its ranks of what he called "unwholesome elements."

McClellan is chairman of the Special Senate Rackets Committee which tried for two days earlier this week to draw answers from Beck about his financial dealings with the giant Teamsters Union, the nation's largest.

Beck invoked his Fifth Amendment protection against possible self-incrimination in refusing to answer.

Yesterday the AFL-CIO Executive Council suspended Beck as a member and vice president and directed its ethical practices committee to investigate charges that he has brought "the labor movement into disrepute."

McClellan was asked at a news conference whether his Senate committee, conducting a far-flung probe of racketeering in the labor-management field, had offered to cooperate with the AFL-CIO investigation.

He replied no formal offer has been made, but he said "I think they know the committee will cooperate with them in every way in the world in every effort they make to eliminate the unwholesome elements that have developed in the labor movement."

"And we feel," he added, "that most leaders of organized labor will reciprocate and be as helpful to the committee as possible."

McClellan was asked if he meant the committee would furnish testimony or documents in its possession which have not been made public in its hearings so far.

The senator said he couldn't speak for the committee, but he declared that "any request from them for information we may have will be given immediate consideration."

The committee has recessed its hearings for about two weeks but McClellan said its investigations into union activities in New York City, Scranton and Philadelphia, Pa., and Los Angeles are "substantially ready" for public hearings.

McClellan said he was "shocked" at the storm of criticism resulting from the railroad's recent drastic force reductions and shifts. Offices here and at Parsons, Kan., were closed with no advance notice to employees.

Designates State As Emergency Area

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—All of Missouri has been designated as an emergency loan area under the farm aid programs.

The Agriculture Department said the action was taken to meet the credit needs of farmers for normal operation expenses. Loans, the Department said, will be limited to the individual's needs for normal operations and may not be used to refinance existing loans.

Apartment Fire Is Deadly

FIRE IN WHICH SEVEN DIED—Firemen lower two of the seven children that lost their lives when fire swept through this North Philadelphia tenement apartment. The origin of the fire which whipped through the three story brick building was not immediately determined. Three families occupied the dwelling. (AP Wirephoto)

DAMAGE AT PILOT GROVE SCHOOL—At about 10:30 o'clock Thursday night, an explosion rocked Pilot Grove and was heard for a four-mile area when a blast occurred at the new Pilot Grove high school building. The blast tore a large hole in the south wall, ripped away a part of the foundation, and the concussion knocked out more than 14 windows of the old school building. Damage was estimated at several thousand dollars. The west wall was cracked and will have to be torn out as will a large portion of the south and west corner, and the partition wall shown in concrete blocks. The Bonnot Construction Co., Uman, Mo., has the contract to build the high school building. (Democrat-Capital photo)

Helps Student Aid Fund

Variety and Style Show Draws Overflow Crowd Second Night

People were turned away from the Variety and Style Show held at Smith-Cotton High School both Thursday and Friday nights and a sum of $820 was taken in, which was the largest amount of any show yet.

Mrs. George Chamberlin, president of the Smith-Cotton PTA, sponsoring the show, stated that the money is put into the student aid fund for the purpose of helping Smith-Cotton students. This year, too, a portion of it will go to the scholarship fund.

The show was opened by Don Land, student council president, who presented Mrs. Chamberlin, and Ken Williams sang "April Snow." Irene Shipley's solo, "A Bird in a Gilded Cage" was exceptionally good and the band in the bandstand directed by Bob Cummings, really added affectively to the show. Members of the band were Janice White, Ernest Watmough, Bill Booth, Tom Boehm, Leland Payton, Bill Sutton and Clifford Robinson.

One of the cutest parts of the show was "The Bowery" with Harry Satterwhite as soloist. As Harry through song and gesture described the Bowery a group of gum-chewing dancers, looking as if they had just come from the Bowery, gave a good picture of what he saw there as they danced wearing the most bored expressions possible. The dancers were Anna Lee Skidmore, Ronnie Jones, Gail Williams, Jack Clark, Kay Satterwhite, Jackson Way, Kay Carraway and Dale Miller.

It was Deanie Perkins, however, who almost stole the show on Friday night, as she and Barbara Kelley, Betty Higgins, Beverly Gambler, Kay Harlan and Barbara Doughterty danced to "Ta Ra Ra Boom Der A." The girls were really going good with their dancing and high kicking and then suddenly, as Deanie kicked with the rest of the group, off went her shoe sailing high in the air back into the chorus. Everybody was surprised, particularly Deanie, but she never lost a step; she went right through the dance with one shoe on and one shoe off.

Smith-Cotton is fortunate to have two unusually good male quartets. One has been very popular with audiences at different organizations where they have appeared on programs. This quartet is composed of Bob Walsh, Tony Walsh, Bob Kreeger and Don Edde, who sang "Strolling Through the Park" and on Friday night gave something extra between the variety show and the style show, singing two numbers, "Casey Jones" and "Coney Island Baby."

The other quartet, Clifford Robinson, Charles Robinson, Harry Satterwhite, and Ken Williams, sang "Oh, You Beautiful Doll" with Pat Moore, in a pink dress styled with high collar, yoke, leg of mutton sleeves and panniers of white with pink rosebuds, as the beautiful doll.

The chorus, of course, all with good voices and in the costumes of (Please turn to page 6, column 5)

Outstanding Program Planned

Violinist Joyce Flissler Here For Final Concert on Monday

The final concert of the 1956-57 season of the Sedalia Symphony Orchestra, under the directorship of Abe Rosenthal, will be held Monday night at the Smith-Cotton High School Auditorium starting at 8:15 p.m.

An outstanding program has been planned to conclude the 22nd consecutive season of the symphony. Joyce Flissler, the Sedalia Men's Choral Club and the orchestra will be featured. Miss Flissler, New York City, is an internationally-known concert violinist.

It will be "Whiteman Airbase Night" at the concert, with all personnel at the base and their families being admitted on identification cards. Several departments at the airbase are cooperating with the Sedalia Symphony Society in promoting attendance at the concert, and a large group of the military and their families are expected to be present.

Both high school and elementary school students will be admitted on tickets obtained through their principals. Others desiring to attend will be admitted in the usual manner through season tickets or individual purchases of tickets for $1 at the door.

The orchestra will first play the Theodora Overture by Handel. Miss Flissler will then perform Beethoven's Sonata in G Major. The orchestra will return to end the first part of the program with selections from "My Fair Lady" by Frederick Loewe.

After intermission, the orchestra will begin the second part with "Romanian Rhapsody" by Enesco. Miss Flissler will play "Hexapoda Suite" by Robert Russell Bennett. The suite is subtitled "Five Studies in Jitterbug" and the studies are entitled "Gu Bucket," "Jane Shakes Her Hair," "Betty and Harold Close Their Eyes," "Jim Jives" and "Until Dawn Sunday."

She will also perform Kreislers "Tambourin Chinois" and "Zigeunerweisen" by Sarasate.

The orchestra and the Sedalia Men's Choral Club will combine to close the program with "The Blue Danube Waltz" by Johann Strauss.

Factory Strikes In London Hurt British Industry

LONDON, March 30 (AP)—Spreading factory strikes hit this teeming manufacturing capital today, paralyzing more and more of the industry on which Britain lives.

An estimated 1,700,000 workers now have laid down their tools in factories and shipyards making everything from hammers to sewing machines and electronic brain computers; from engines to bombers, sleek new tankers and liners.

A half million men in about 1,000 Greater London plants officially joined today the million "engineering" workers who walked out a week ago, mainly in Scotland and northern England. Two hundred thousand shipmakers began the third week of their strike, which has silenced 70 shipyards around Britain.

Neither side in the wage disputes held out any prospect of peace moves over the weekend. Negotiations the past week broke down in deadlock.

Labor Minister Iain Macleod pinned his hopes for an early end to the strikes on an appeal to the unions to call off their walkout and leave the issues to an impartial investigation by a three-man court of inquiry.

St. Louis Motorist Killed at Crossing

ST. LOUIS, March 30 (AP)—A motorist was killed today in the collision of his car with a west-bound Missouri Pacific passenger train at the Cherry Avenue crossing at suburban Webster Groves.

The victim was Robert Heidinger, 30, of Webster Groves. It was the second such fatality at the same crossing within a week.

Hope Grows Rescue Near

Nomad Women Are Believed To Have American Woman

Bulletin

TEHRAN, Iran, Sunday, March 30 (AP)—The Interior Ministry announced today the leader of a desert bandit gang sent a message saying Mrs. Anita Carroll is "quite safe." The leader has agreed to release the American woman if he is allowed to go free.

TEHRAN, Iran, March 30 (AP)—The Shah's police and soldiers were reported tonight pursuing a group of nomad women "believed to have a non-Iranian woman with them." Hope soared that the foreign woman was Mrs. Anita Carroll, an American kidnapped six days ago by desert bandits, and that she would be rescued soon.

A doctor and a nurse were rushed to the Tangeorkheh Desert 800 miles southeast of Tehran "to stand by."

Earlier today a desert tribesman told of seeing a white-faced foreign woman riding on muleback with the women and children of a nomad bandit band, presumably the one which captured Mrs. Carroll last Sunday—presumably for sale as a slave—after murdering her husband and another American in the desolate reaches of southeastern Iran.

There was talk that she already had been freed, but there was no confirmation from search headquarters at Iransahr in the desert.

The latest report from the search area continued to speak of the hunt closing in on Mrs. Carroll's kidnapers. The U. S. Embassy in Tehran (Please turn to page 6 column 3)

Three Youths Are Paroled By Hoffman

Three juveniles who didn't pay attention when Prosecuting Attorney Harold Barrick warned them two years ago to walk the straight and narrow path now have paroles from the Boonville Training School for Boys hanging over their heads. The three were part of a group of 19 who were warned as a group after being caught in violations throughout the city.

The other 16 so far have heeded the warning, but the remaining three recently were connected with an attempt to siphon gasoline from a vehicle parked in the parking lot next to City Hall. They were promptly marched by Barrick before Judge Dimmitt Hoffman in juvenile court on March 21.

The judge then lectured sternly both the boys and their parents and shook his head when he got response from the parents in answer to his request for suggestions about how to handle the boys. He (Please turn to page 6, column 4)

No Organized Opposition

Proposed Amendment Faces Vote Tuesday

JEFFERSON CITY, March 30 (AP)—Does better legislative pay attract better legislators? Are Missouri's legislators good lawmakers now and simply underpaid?

The state's voters will indicate their ideas on those questions Tuesday.

Up for consideration is a proposed change in the constitution to give the lawmakers a flat $300 a month the year around instead of the present year around pay of $125 a month. It will also give House and Senate members weekly round trip mileage during legislative sessions instead of just once a session.

Most statewide organizations Gov. James T. Blair have come out for the increase, insisting the pay raise is badly needed.

Just today, the State Chamber of Commerce put it this way:

Apparently there is no organized opposition to the increase. Still, lots of individuals—including some former and present members of the Legislature—have indicated they are against the pay boost.

They say the House and Senate members knew what the pay was when they campaigned for the state jobs and they should not be allowed a pay hike during their terms in office. They add that increasing the pay will just be wasting money on legislators who are no better than their predecessors.

Just on the basis of the inflationary trend, however, $300 now probably would be about equal to $125 a month when that salary was established in 1941.

And normally it's the organized voters who go to the polls, not the unorganized individuals.

Take the special election Jan. 24, 1956, when Missouri agreed to issue bonds totaling $75 million to make major building improvements at the state's mental hospitals. (Please turn to page 6, column 5)

Attend 4-H School
Mrs. Howard Paige, Gayle Paige, Mrs. Ralph Linhardt, and Roy Pottorf attended an all day district 4-H recreational training meeting at Clinton, March 26.

Changes in 4-H Program
Major changes in the 1957 4-H program deal in part or entirely with 4-H Judging.

The two district events participation regulation has been modified. Since district achievement days could not participate in district judging.

The new regulation makes it possible for 4-H members to participate in grooming, dress revue, demonstrations, or public speaking in district achievement days. Those not selected to participate in the state event may enter a district judging contest that follows. If the district judging day was held first, those not selected on state teams would be free to participate in district achievement days. A club member cannot participate in two state events. An exception is made for Share-The Fun participants.

The second change has to do with the manner of selection of district judging teams. In all home economics judging contests and in vegetable judging, the high three in the district judging event will constitute the district team. They could come from three different counties or they could be all from one county.

The state teams will be made up of the high three individuals in each contest. They will be something like the All American football team — they will never actually judge together as a team since there will be no judging contest beyond the state. Nevertheless a state team will be named in clothing, foods, home furnishings, vegetables, etc.

No change will be made in the manner of selecting livestock and dairy judging teams. The county team will remain intact from the district contest on up.

There will be no district poultry judging contests. Counties may enter one, two, or three members who have passed their 14th birthday on Jan. 1 in the state poultry judging contest at State Achievement Day. The high three in the state contest will constitute the state team and will represent Missouri in the Invitational Poultry Judging contest at Chicago.

Meat identification and judging will be handled on a still different basis. A meat identification and judging team of four club members has been selected on a statewide basis for a number of years. The change with respect to this event is that there will be six training days for older 4-H members at which time those who appear to be ready to participate in a state contest will be selected.

Previously, the selection has been purely on a county basis; each county sending one or more

State Highway Employees to Get Safety Awards

Special recognition will be given to 132 Missouri state highway employees during the next few months for individual safety records compiled during the past ten years. The State Highway Commission will present each such employee an individual, billfold size card as a safety award for having worked ten consecutive years without being involved in a lost-time accident. The cards go only to those employees covered by Workmen's Compensation and who spend 50 per cent or more of their time in the field.

This is the second year these

10-year safety award cards have been given out by the commission. Last year 756 workers received them. Presentation of the cards will be made at the various district meetings of the State Highway Employees' Association this spring. The first such meeting is slated at Kirkwood for District 6 on March 22.

Employees receiving the 10-year safety award this year will include:

District 4, Kansas City: Herbert A. Francis and William R. Dollard, Marshall; John W. Kempe and Earl D. Pierce, Clinton; and Glen

F. Kreisel and Alf Shinn, Warsaw.

District 5, Jefferson City: Bernice W. Meyer, Bunceton.

Main office, Jefferson City: Harold W. Kueffer, California.

Hollywood Girl Starts In Eastern TV

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Erin O'Brien is one of the latest and loveliest examples of the truth of the adage "Go east, young girl."

Betty Grable and numerous others found fame only by heading for New York. Then they were discovered by Hollywood. The same is true of Erin. But instead of playing on Broadway like her predecessors, she got her break in TV.

Erin was born in Hollywood and grew up in Long Beach. But it wasn't until she started appearing as a regular with Steve Allen in New York that her home town began to take notice.

Now her career is booming. She may sign a contract with Warners which wants her for a role in "Marjorie Morningstar." She has guested here with George Gobel and other shows and is signing a deal with Coral Records.

Erin is a soft-spoken, dark-haired lovely who looks a bit like Jean Simmons. Erin O'Brien is really her name, and she's the eldest of 14 children of a Long Beach milk delivery man. Except for a year's training when she was 11, she's had no singing lessons.

"But I come from a singing family," she explained. "We were always singing around the house."

She also sang at civic clubs, etc., and that's how a scout for a Los Angeles TV station saw her. Her mother's reaction to the offer of a job: "She's too fat." Erin was a pudgy 145 pounds then, compared with her present 122.

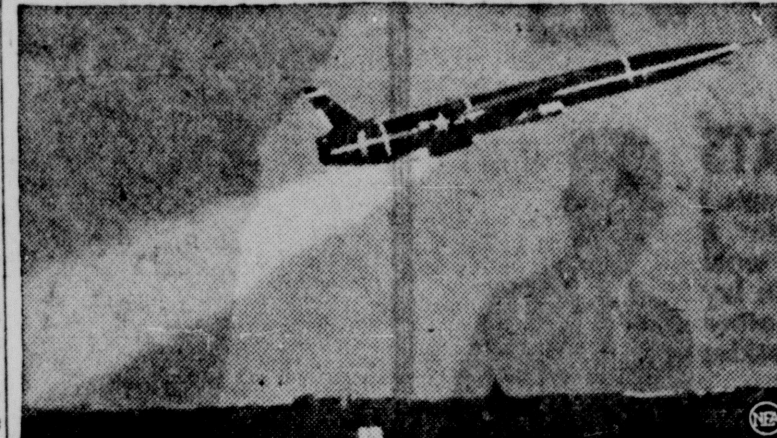

The five-day grind on Al Jarvis' Matinee Show helped slim her down. After three years of it, she went on the road as a singer. Then she retired to become a "domestic engineer," the wife of singer Jimmy Fitzgerald and a mother of two sons.

That might have been the end of it except for the workings of fate. An agent friend spied her dining out with her family in a drive-in restaurant, asked her about the lead in a local musical. The show laid a large egg, but it prompted her to try out for Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts, which was appearing here. Erin won, was hustled off to New York the same night. She came to the attention of Steve Allen, who admired her patrician beauty and way with a song.

That's her saga, but the best is yet to come. Her career could well take off, now that Hollywood has claimed her at long last.

SNARK MISSILE: A runaway from Florida to Brazil.

MATADOR MISSILE: A runaway from White Sands to the Rockies.

Experts Wage Costly War On Runaway Guided Missiles

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — An enormously expensive and complex scientific fight is being waged to protect American citizens from a strange new death which threatens from the sky.

It's the danger to lives and property from runaway guided missiles.

During the past few months two gigantic missiles have broken away from human control. One, a Snark, roared through the skies from a Florida base to crash in a Brazilian forest. Another a Matador, screamed across several states at close to the speed of sound from White Sands, N.M., outran two jet chase planes, and fortunately crashed into a sparsely populated Rocky Mountain area.

Congress is investigating these incidents.

An increased missile firing program at bases around the country, the greater ranges and speeds of new missiles and the existence of thousands of operational missiles in the hands of troops all over the U.S. have added to this danger.

Considering the inherent danger of each fired missile becoming a flying Frankenstein monster, the safety record has been phenomenal.

Security restrictions prohibit release of exact figures on how many runaway missiles there have been in the vast test programs. But an amazingly few have gotten beyond the bounds of the test ranges to threaten civilians or private property.

Pentagon records show that only one operational missile, a Nike, has been a runaway. On April 14, 1955, during a practice civil defense at a battery near Baltimore, a faulty transmission caused a Nike to misfire. It landed near a highway several miles away.

No one was injured. And according to the Pentagon no one has been killed or injured as a result of any of the runaway missile incidents.

The cost of achieving this record, however, has been high. Pentagon missile experts admit. "And it's possible that we are erring on the side of too much safety," one says.

One of the several safety systems built into most missiles is called a "self-destruct circuit." If a guidance system fails for a specified few moments an electronic brain automatically detonates a group of explosive bolts which cause the missile to fall apart instantly.

"I'd hate to tell you how many missiles we've lost with this device because we've temporarily lost guidance," says an expert. "In hundreds of cases guidance would probably have been restored almost immediately but the missile was demolished a split-second before this happened," he explains.

The key individual enforcing the elaborate missile safety regulations is the range safety officer who has overriding authority to halt a test at any time up to a split second before firing.

After a missile is fired he watches its progress on a radar scope and the moment it approaches a certain boundary marker he can push a destruct button and crash it. In some cases this is a $100,000 decision—the cost of a missile—to be made in the fraction of a second. But his orders are to never take a chance.

This is called the "command destruct" system.

In the first place, a missile's path is always plotted to be over test range area. This precaution is reinforced by the command and self-destruct systems. Finally, on the longer-range missiles, a tracking plane follows, ready to shoot down a runaway in case all of the other safety factors fail.

Within this safety system they apply what they called the "redundancy" concept. There might be two or three self-destruct circuits in the same missile to insure against failure of one of them, for example.

The mere development of these safety systems has been a costly and complex scientific endeavor. And enforcing the rigid safety regulations has cost time and the destruction of a great many missiles.

"But we think it has been worth while," a missile safety expert claims.

The classic example cited on the effectiveness of missile safety is the 20-mile by-pass road they were going to build to eliminate a small section of highway which cuts across the missile range at White Sands.

Before they started to build it a statistician proved that the hazards of driving 20 extra miles were far greater than those of being hit by a missile on the short stretch across the range.

Skating, Riding Replace Pushups In Air Force

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Roller skating and horseback riding have partially replaced those dreaded pushups in the basic training program at Lackland Air Force Base.

Under a new program, trainees can elect to spend 10 hours of the required 28 hours of physical training and calisthenics roller skating to the music of an organ at an air-conditioned rink or they can take a go at horseback riding.

The idea has been greeted enthusiastically by the airmen.

"These boys go for it big," said Heinie Mueller, civilian operator of the rink and stable. "Some of them are becoming marvelous skaters." Entire flights sometimes take their skating lessons together.

Mueller said the rink cost $260,000 and was completed Jan. 21. He said it was privately financed in return for a 10 year lease from the federal government.

The stable, with 41 horses saddled and ready to go, hasn't proved as popular as the roller skating rink.

"No business," said W. C. Taylor, as he surveyed the stable he manages for Mueller. "They all go skating."

Test In Maryland

The state's miscegenation law, which dates back to 1715 or possibly farther, was challenged for the first time yesterday. Atty. John J. O'Connor Jr. pleaded for dismissal of an indictment charging a 20-year-old white girl with illegally bearing a Negro baby.

O'Connor said the ancient statute is no longer applicable because "it was conceived in the hatred and hostility of a slave

Hope Grows

bassy was informed that one of five police columns pursuing the bandits was "close to a group of tribal women believed to have a non-Iranian woman with them."

Police came across the witness as they followed a trail of paper and clothing presumably left by Mrs. Carroll on the desolate Tangorkeh Desert near the Pakistan border. Twelve hundred Iranian police and troops of the Shah's imperial guard are scouring the desert in search for the pretty 35-year-old American woman seized six days ago by outlaws who killed her husband, another U. S. aid official and two Iranians.

The bodies of Mrs. Carroll's husband, Kevin, 37, a Point Four official in Iran, and Brewster A. Wilson, 35, of Portland, Ore., a Near East Foundation official, have been brought to Tehran for return to the United States.

The U. S. Embassy said the police found Mrs. Carroll's empty suitcase and then the witness who "claimed to have seen a foreign lady on a mule, traveling along with the women and children of the bandits in the desert toward the southeast Iran-Pakistan border."

"The blonde white-faced foreigner did not have any difficulty and had no signs of injury," the witness said.

He added that the woman he saw was not tied and was "not looking sick."

His story indicated the band was heading toward Pakistan, as police already had suspected. Extra guards have been placed on the border and Pakistani authorities have been asked to keep a lookout.

Style Show

the Gay Nineties, was a picturesque part of the show.

The show was under the direction of Mrs. Carl Schrader with Miss Lois Gordon teaching the dance step for the numbers. Make-up was by Mr. Blair, and Miss Gwen Tuck, art instructor, with her students, Jon Waller, Myrna Miller, Carol Savage, Marvin Maune, Lynn Jackson and Anne Uhr, were responsible for the back drop. Emerson Matthews and his manual training department also helped with the scenery.

Youngsters in the style show, as always, delighted the audience Friday night, with several groups of brothers and sisters and others modeled fashions for Easter. The most laughs came from the modeling of two little boys, cousins, one in a striped jacket of several colors which he wore with brown trousers and a little brown hat and the other with a light gray jacket, dark trousers and a little gray hat. They just weren't sure what they were supposed to do and didn't care much, so they just walked on to the back of the stage, turned their backs to the audience and looked at the stream of water painted on the backdrop. Cute little girls modeled fluffy pinafores, organdy dress and other materials most of them worn over crinolines which two little sisters raised their dresses to show off. Little Easter bonnets were lacey and pretty. Boys were all dressed up in brown, dark blue, black or gray suits, some with hats and some without, and several of them proudly showed off their little sisters.

Women's clothes were very attractive with sheath dresses, some with dusters lined with the same material as their dresses, dresses of all kinds of materials with full skirts over crinolines, with bows, sashes, ruffles and lace; lightweight suits, sport outfits of all kinds, bathing suits, some with short coats to match, beautiful formals, and maternity dresses. Then there was something for the June bride, an exquisite wedding gown, with the full skirt with three flounces of nylon net, the lace waist extending down in long points in front and back and fashioned with long sleeves. Her fingertip veil cascaded from a white satin cap.

The men's clothes included the business suits, the light or white jackets with dark trousers and the Bermuda shorts of tan matching his cap, with his socks the shade of brown of his plaid jacket.

Stores having models Friday night were Connor-Wagners, Maxine's, Lad and Lassie Shop, Wilson's, Flowers, Patterson's, and Ellis'.

Fire Destroys Storage Plant In Columbia

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the refrigerated warehouse building of the Columbia Ice and Cold Storage Co. in Columbia Thursday night. The two-floor, 58-foot-high building was gutted by the fire at a loss running into thousands of dollars.

Jack Cunningham, of the Sedalia Ice and Cold Storage Co., is vice-president of the Columbia firm. Cunningham is in Columbia conferring with others as to the possibilities of rebuilding the warehouse.

The fire was discovered at 6:25 Thursday night and was not brought under control until 5:30 a.m. Friday. More than 30 firemen, six pumper trucks and an aerial truck were used in battling the flames.

Firemen were handicapped in the battle due to the construction of the building with no windows and enclosed in cork insulation which smoldered for hours. Two firemen were overcome by smoke and were treated at the Boone County Hospital.

In the legislative pay raise question to bring out more than a sprinkling of voters.

But there are lots of local elections that haven't built up any voter interest. Like the Jefferson City municipal election in which only one Republican is on the ballot and the election thereby is forfeited to the Democrats.

In circumstances like that it will take a lot of voter interest

There was no organized opposition and plenty of organized support. The vote totaled a puny 161, 179 out of a voter potential of 2, 800,000. And the proposal carried by seven to one.

This time the election coincides with a number of municipal elections. If local party fights bring out the vote maybe the balloting will be bigger on the constitutional amendment.

Clergy Elect To Pay Social Security Tax

More than half of the Nation's clergymen—approximately 100,000—to date have exercised their right to come under social security as provided by the 1954 amendments of the law, it was announced today.

The amendments set a limit on the time in which a clergyman may elect to come under social security.

For most clergymen this period expires April 15, 1957.

Under the original social security law, ministers, priests, rabbis, Christian Science practitioners, and members of religious orders were exempt from the payment of social security taxes on earnings from performance of their religious duties.

The 1954 amendments permit them to waive this exemption, pay social security taxes individually as self-employed persons beginning with 1955, and earn social security benefits.

The April 15 deadline applies to those clergymen who in each of the years 1955 and 1956 had $400 or more in net earnings from self-employment, any part of which was from the performance of their religious duties. Other clergymen have a further period in which to elect to come under social security. However, for 1956 earnings to be included, this must be done by April 15, 1957.

If a clergyman elects to come under social security, he cannot, under the law, withdraw after the first social security tax under his waiver becomes due. Such waivers remain in effect and need no renewal.

In order to have his earnings count toward social security, a clergyman must file Internal Service Form 2031. This form is available from any District Director of Internal Revenue or from any social security district office.

Payment of the social security tax without filing Form 2031 does not entitle a clergyman to social security credit for his earnings from the ministry. However, a clergyman who reported and paid the tax for 1955 without filing Form 2031 may still receive credit for his earnings in that year by filing the form promptly.

Marvelous Molly

NEW YORK (A)—Molly, a Cinderella element found 50 years ago in the Colorado Rockies, may provide aircraft designers with the metal battering ram needed to crash through the "heat barrier"—the greatest of the obstacles now blocking man's progress in the skies.

Steelways, official publication of American Iron and Steel Institute, says that the element molybdenum, nicknamed Molly, when properly coated to resist oxidation, has the ability to retain tremendous strength at the searing temperatures that come with supersonic speeds.

Using the alloying element, designers hope to overcome the heat problems that at some speeds and altitudes cause materials in today's planes to fuse or pull apart.

Steelways says the resistant quality of Molly—it does not melt at temperatures as high as 4,750 degrees Fahrenheit—is only one of its many virtues. The element also allows steelmakers to make extremely hard steel without sacrificing toughness and minimizes the threat of stresses or cracks during fabrication and heat treating.

A Personal Message by R. M. (Dick) Battles

I BELIEVE that residents of south and southwest Sedalia are entitled to quicker fire protection. Unfilled promises from office-seekers, and plans on paper will not extinguish a fire at YOUR HOME. Fast, adequate fire protection is a "must" for this area at the earliest date. A LARGE BOND ISSUE IS NOT NECESSARY!

I BELIEVE that all revenues from city gasoline tax, parking meters and city auto license should be used exclusively to help maintain present city streets and pay (at least part) for new street construction.

I BELIEVE that a great majority of closed meetings of the city council are entirely unnecessary and undemocratic. Public discussion and debate by councilmen promote better government. Citizens have more confidence in the officials representing them when "closed door" sessions are held to a bare minimum.

I BELIEVE that our police department should be rescued immediately from the domination of power-hungry political leaders. I advocate an elected bi-partisan police board that will look after the welfare and protection of our citizens, AND THE WELFARE OF LOYAL, EFFICIENT POLICE OFFICERS AT THE SAME TIME.

I BELIEVE that each and every expenditure by the city (10 cents or $10,000.00) should be paid by numbered vouchers. Vouchers should describe in explicit words the reason for disbursement, name of recipient and his or her address. Display of annual city statement should include printing in a Pettis county daily newspaper of all vouchers, to whom paid and for what purpose.

I BELIEVE that the city council should call upon more citizens who place the welfare of Sedalia above petty politics to participate in long-range planning of city projects. THE COST OF OUTSIDE PLANNING EXPERTS DOES NOT FIT OUR CITY BUDGET! Many times, these experts from larger cities do not understand our problems, and the desires and customs of our citizens.

I BELIEVE that an alderman should represent Republicans and Democrats in city affairs with equal vigor and fair-minded consideration. Underhanded political machinations by either political party will not help build a greater Sedalia!

Calypso Beat Has Charmed Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — Hollywood is bouncing to a calypso beat. The film companies have registered no less than 30 titles containing the word calypso, including the now-shooting dandy, "Bop Girl Goes Calypso." Don't be surprised if even Ma and Pa Kettle go calypso, and Tarzan and the Bowery Boys as well.

The producers want to cash in on the calypso craze, but they'll have to go some to catch up with Sam Katzman. The film-making marvel finished "Calypso Heat Wave" Monday and plans to have it playing in New York within four weeks. At that, he claims to be a little slow.

"This calypso craze sneaked up on me," he remarked. "I should have seen it coming much sooner."

The cigar-chewing Katzman is a much richer man for having recognized another musical craze. Last year he strung together "Rock Around the Clock" for $385,000. Aided by riots and banings, the film is adding up a four-million-dollar gross.

He followed this with "Don't Knock the Rock" at $365,000. "If it did half the business of the first picture, I'd consider myself lucky," he remarked. "But it's doing 75 per cent!"

Katzman, who comes from a musical family, keeps his well-tuned ear to the ground. He tours the country twice yearly assessing public tastes, and prowls the musical joints. He said that his 19-year-old son is perhaps the best barometer of juvenile tastes.

"Whatever he goes for, I look into," Katzman said.

The producer's speed with "Calypso Heat Wave" is not merely to beat the opposition.

"I want to get the picture out in a hurry because this calypso craze won't last long," he remarked. "The kids like it now, but it will blow over. They like something with a beat, something they can dance to — and calypso ain't it."

Concello Gives Circus New Life, Color

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—The skill, ingenuity and perseverance of one round little man is sending the circus out again this season.

Arthur M. Concello, who probably knows more about every facet of circus operation than any man alive, has no intention of letting it die—despite the "end of an era" orations which filled the air last summer when the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus folded its great tent and broke up its show in mid-season.

While the circus languished through the late summer and fall, this former star of the flying trapeze went to work.

The result of his effort will be tested this month when the Ringling circus breaks camp at its winter quarters here and moves north for an opening in New York's Madison Square Garden April 3—the first date in a schedule expected to last until December. The show will play indoors in the spring and outdoors in ball parks and fair grounds—with no tent—during the hot months of the summer.

For many years executive director of the big show and a close friend of circus president John Ringling North, Concello has brought the circus many innovations. This year he has added another—huge tubular aluminum "grids" to support the webbing and trapeze gear used in flying acts without the familiar tent-poles of the old circus.

Similar to the "grids" in the theatres, these supports are easily transported and can either be anchored to ceilings indoors or raised on four tubular steel supports outdoors.

The son of a railroadman, Concello was born in Spokane, Wash., but grew up in Bloomington, Ill. At the age of 16 he joined the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus. In 1928 he joined the Eddie Ward troupe on the Sells-Floto show and in 1930 came to the Ringlings. Except for short periods, he has been there ever since.

Concello was one of the greatest "fliers" in the business—many say he was the greatest—and with his wife, Antoinette, formed the greatest flying act the circus ever saw, doing leaps, somersaults, pirouettes and passes. Both could do the triple somersault.

Since Concello quit the flying trapeze, he broadened his knowledge of the circus. He frequently prowls around the sprawling winter quarters, watching, asking questions, hatching ideas.

His dark paneled office is just across the hall from that of Pat Valdo, 55 years with the show and long-time personnel director.

Concello is in and about the grounds earlier and more often than North, and usually speaks for his boss. This year he negotiated a contract with the American Guild of Variety Artists, a group which had been at odds with the circus management for years. He also is called upon to make many on-the-spot decisions in connection with the vast operation.

Thus Concello, a short, somewhat heavier man than when he spun through the air with the greatest of ease, is the mainspring, the vital force behind the performance and the show itself. North leans on him for advice and ideas and counts on him to carry out over-all plans.

Concello likes to puff on a big cigar and talk of plans for the show. He never mentions the past, but is certain the circus will have a full and profitable season in 1957 and for years to come.

The circus may have changed with the times and no longer closely resembles the vast tented city

New Senate Building Will Give VP More Office Room

By KENNETH GILMORE NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— Vice-President Richard Nixon may have solved his over-crowded domestic condition with a 21-room house, but he's still cramped for office space.

And there's not a thing he can do about it until some time in the fall of 1958. If all goes well, that's when Nixon and 40 lucky Senators will move into the 18 million dollar Senate Office Building now under construction.

One feature of the seven-story structure is a choice, first floor corner location for the V.P. It has a large inner office, three adjoining rooms for the staff and a reception room.

"It will be the largest suite in the building," says Harvey Middleton who's directing the project for the Capitol architect.

Nixon's present quarters in the old Senate Office Building consist of four rooms which are "terribly cramped," according to one of his 13 staffers. He would actually hire more help if he had the space.

Covering half a city block, the marble-faced structure will give many solons a chance to let their secretaries out of closets, thanks to well-proportioned five-room suites.

Nearly 200 cars will be able to park in the two stories below street level. A basement in the gymnasium will also allow legislators to flex their muscles, play, handball or receive rubdowns. During summer they can bask on a special senatorial sun-deck.

Original plans calling for a swimming pool were thrown out for economy reasons.

In addition to a large dining room for Senators, a cafeteria will seat 700 people at a time and take care of more than 2,000 people during a heavy lunch hour.

A 500-seat auditorium specially designed for national television with a walled-off studio will meet the demands of spectacular committee hearings.

Eight rooms in the new building will be set aside for a school for Senate pages. There will also be 12 spacious committee rooms.

Two pedestrian tunnels will connect the new building to the old and eventually a modern subway will run directly to the Senate.

To Give Report On Dark-Cutting Beef at MU Meet

A research progress report on dark-cutting beef will be included on the program of the University of Missouri's Annual Spring Livestock Day April 5.

H. D. Naumann, project leader of the University's meat section, says that indirectly, dark-cutting beef costs the producer a great deal of money each year. Its causes and possible ways of correction will be discussed at Spring Livestock Day.

The report on work with dark-cutting beef will include an exhibit of wholesale cuts of beef from two carcasses. One will be a dark-cutting carcass and the other a normal, bright-red carcass. This comparison will point out the differences between the carcasses and why consumers object to dark-cutting beef.

In addition, staff members of the meat section will report on consumer preference studies with beef and pork as conducted by the Missouri College of Agriculture the past year. The College has been a national leader in making these preference studies.

Many other subjects of interest to livestock producers will be covered at Spring Livestock Day April

Shiny Picture Has a Hint Of Trouble

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—A living example of what is happening to savings and income in this inflationary century is reported from Los Angeles. It's a story that's all glowing on the surface but may have some disturbing shadows underneath.

Miss Sarah A. Walker, now 104, has been getting income payments regularly for 38 years from three small annuities she bought in 1919 when she was 66. Since she happily has long since survived the life expectancy averages on which the annuities were based, she has by now collected $2.50 for each $1 she invested then.

That's very pleasant for her and even the insurance companies who sold the annuities aren't complaining. They wish her many more happy returns — and income checks.

But the 38 years have seen some startling changes to that money and to the economy in general — not to mention life expectancy tables.

In 1919 when Miss Walker bought the annuities her stated purpose was to increase her income. Doubtless she felt the need for that more keenly just then because the inflation that accompanied and followed the first world war was in full swing. The first income checks she cashed in 1920 didn't buy her as much at the store as the money she invested just a year before, and bought her far less than she could have got in 1914.

But that changed quickly and for most of the years between 1920 and 1933 Miss Walker was getting bigger and bigger at-the-store returns on her fixed income.

From that time on, alas, with few interruptions, her income check has shriveled steadily at the store.

The government's consumer price index takes the 1947-49 average as 100. That puts the cost of living index in 1919 at 76.9. In 1933 it had sunk to 55.8. But since then it has more than doubled and now stands at a record 118.7.

In other words, the purchasing power of the dollar has dropped so low that if Miss Walker's annuity payment was $76.90 in 1919 when she invested, she would have to dig up an extra $41.00 today if she wants to buy as much at the store.

Particular emphasis, this year, will be given to strengthening their work as administrators.

The program for this meeting is under the direction of the regional committee with Mrs. Holton Price, Jr., of St. Louis, as chairman; and the national field staff of Region VIII, of which Miss M. Isobel Crowe is the regional director. # S-C Baseball, Net Teams Take Shape in Practice

Baseball will get the first competition opening against Rockhurst, Kansas City, there on Wednesday, April 3, while the tennis squad will play its first competitor, the Columbia Hickman Kewpies on April 17 there.

Baseball has attracted 29 prospective players. The battle for berths on the Varsity squad is terrific and competition is strong among the players. Cutting down to squad players is going to be tough for the coaches this season.

As to the tennis squad, the first Smith-Cotton has had in several seasons, there are 13 players out and practicing hard to become the top selections to represent the Tigers in the Central Missouri Conference.

The tennis team schedule calls for six meets. Three already are scheduled, at Columbia on April 17; Kemper Military Academy on April 22, there; and Columbia here on April 29. Three other meets are under discussion for scheduling.

Baseball's schedule calls for: Rockhurst, there, April 3; Tipton, here, April 8; Mexico, there, April 9; Ashland, here April 12; Jefferson City, there, April 16; Pembroke Country Day K. ## Philosophy From Cards' Bench

Trader Man Lane Reminisces Past Trades With Reporters

By ED WILKS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 30.—Frank Lane leaned back on the St. Louis Cardinal bench at Al Lang field today and talked about the best deal he ever made.

"It was the first deal I ever made, the one where I got Billy Pierce and $10,000 for Aaron Robinson," said baseball's David Harum.

The record book shows Pierce came to the Chicago White Sox on Nov. 10, 1948, for Robinson. That's all. It was Lane who supplied the line about the 10 grand.

"And I know what the next question is," said Lane, who after seven years and 250 deals with the White Sox now is in his second year as general manager of the Cardinals. "The worst deal I ever made was for Al Zarilla."

"He had hit .300 for three seasons and I knew I wanted him. So I sent Bill Wright and Ray Scarborough to the Red Sox for Zarilla. Joe Dobson and Dick Littlefield. The only thing that made it a bad deal was Zarilla tried too hard."

"He tried so hard he hit .250 or something like that."

"The only thing that saved it was Dobson. He won 14 for us. But people don't remember that."

"They gave me an awful time in Chicago when I got rid of Cass Michaels. He was the all-star second baseman. But I got 'em Nellie Fox from the A's for Joe Tipton. What second baseman's been on the all-star team the last six years? Fox. That's who."

Lane admitted he was a bit surprised that there haven't been more trades this spring. But the man who has made 24 deals involving 56 players since coming to the Cards added that's the way it should be.

"You get a better deal in the winter," he said. "You have a better perspective then on what the player did in the season just ended. You get down here and it's a three-ring circus. You think you can do without a guy and then he hits like mad for two games and you change your mind."

"You can't tell about a player in spring training. I remember in '46 the Yankees had four pitchers down here. They each pitched maybe 16, 17 innings and gave up only two earned runs among 'em. But when the season started, they didn't even make the team."

He thought about the Yankees a moment. "You know, I made 250 deals with the White Sox and not one of 'em was with the Yankees. The Yankees made those package deals. Give you a bunch of guys who can't help them. Why figure they can help you?"

"Take that trade they made with the A's. If Dittmar wins 20 for the Yankees they'll say it was a bad deal by the A's. But you know Dittmar's not going to win 20 with Kansas City."

Lane crossed his legs and folded his arms across his chest.

"It was the same with Brooks Lawrence. He won 19 for Cincinnati but a pitcher should win 19 with all that power. He wouldn't win 19 with us. We got Jackie Collum for Lawrence. Collum was 6-2, but he saved another 12 ball games for us. People forget that."

Lane was getting back to his favorite subject. Not a defense of what he's done, but more of a discussion on the philosophy of a general manager.

"I got Herm Wehmeier from the Phillies and they say I'm nuts because he never beat the Cardinals. Why did I want a pitcher I knew we could beat. Because he pitched well against the other clubs."

Now George Weiss of the Yankees takes the other view. He'd never deal for Ned Garver because the Yankees always could beat him. Garver's only 4-17 against them so Weiss figures why get a guy you can beat?"

Lane looked up and watched Cincinnati's power drive ball after ball into the short left field line during batting practice. He just shook his head.

"Say I make 50 decisions a year," he continued. "And say 30 of them are good. I'm batting .600 and that's pretty good. But the

Athletics Drub Minor Leaguers

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 30 (AP)—Gus Zerial, Bob Cerv and Vic Power hit home runs today as the Kansas City Athletics defeated the Buffalo Bisons of the International League 4-1 in an exhibition game.

Zerial homered in the third with Milt Graff aboard. Cerv hit his in the sixth and Power followed with a homer in the seventh.

Rip Coleman limited the Bisons to one run and five hits in six innings. Eddie Blake finished and checked Buffalo on one hit.

Hal Smith, Kansas City catcher, was thrown out of the game in the second inning after a brief argument with plate umpire Joe Paparella.

fans and the sportswriters say you're a bum because of the 20 that went bad. Of course, you KNOW they could have done better on those 20—and you KNOW they'd have done just as well on the other 30.

"Take that trade last year. When I traded Bill Virdon, a young player, for Bobby Del Greco, a younger one. Well, Virdon bats .319 and Del Greco hits .214 and a fella asks me at the end of the season who'd I rather have.

"That's like asking me whether I want $300 or $200."

East Comes From Behind To Top West

NEW YORK, March 30.—Trailing by as many as 13 points in the first half, the East bounced back behind Louisville's Charlie Tyra, Manhattan's Gerry Paulson and St. John's Dick Duckett to defeat the West 73-63, today in the 11th annual Fresh Air Fund collegiate all-star basketball game before 13,448 in Madison Square Garden.

SMU's Jim Krebs and Detroit's Bill Ebben sparked the West to a 40-33 halftime lead. The West leading 35-22 with five minutes remaining in the session.

Just before the nine minute mark of the second half, the West led 57-50. However, Tyra, who had been sharing the center spot with Dayton's Jim Palmer, returned after resting with four personals, and hit five straight points. He scored 20 in all. Paulson added a drive-in to tie the score at 57-57 at 11:59.

Iowa State's Gary Thompson's two free throws put the West ahead again but Paulson took a feed from Duckett to square it again and then hit a jumper which gave the East its first lead which it never relinquished.

Ebben and Krebs each scored 13 for the losers in the series which stands 6-5 in favor of the East. Duckett was named to the most valuable player in the game which was televised nationally CBS.

Double Overtime Gives St. Louis Win Over Celtics

BOSTON, March 30.—The St. Louis Hawks withstood a withering Boston Celtics rally for a 125-123 double overtime victory today on Jack Coleman's field goal in the opener of the National Basketball Assn. playoffs finals.

Coleman unleashed a desperate 15-foot shot with 30 seconds to go that told the story of the hard pounding Boston Garden contest before 5,976 and a national television audience.

Hawks' ace Bob Pettit, who scored 37 points, received outstanding support from league veterans Ed Macauley, a former Boston player, and Slater Martin.

It was Coleman's sidearm 15-footer, however, with the 24 second limit running out which made the difference.

Boston, which never got a lead until early in the second half, forced the first overtime on Tom Heinsohn's tapin with five seconds to play and sent it into the second extra session on Bob Cousy's long set with 15 seconds left.

Bill Sharman ignited the losers with 36 points while Heinsohn and Cousy contributed 26 apiece. Martin and Macauley accounted for 23 each for the Hawks.

Phils' Rowan Beats Cards

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 30.—Rookie outfielder Bob Bowman accounted for all the Philadelphia runs today as the Phillies beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1.

Bowman homered with one on in the first and forced the other Philadelphia run across in the fourth when hit by a pitch from Sam Jones with the bases full.

Ken Boyer homered off Curt Simmons in the fourth for the lone Cardinal tally.

Simmons went seven innings and allowed six hits. Seth Morehead, another lefty, finished for the Phils, allowing another Cardinal hit.

Jones, Bob Smith and Jim Davis shared the mound chores for St. Louis and limited the Phils to six hits.

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

WITH the spring weather breaking through, the urge of these young "Hot Rod" enthusiasts to organize a club in Sedalia has started. They are desiring to obtain a strip at which to hold their competition, this becoming their biggest problem and project.

Throughout the country such strips have been built and are being used. It has gained recognition as a national sport. National contests have been sponsored, one in Kansas City last year. These contests are gaining much interest among these people who love speed and who love to see what they can do with an automobile. Then there are the people who love speed, excitement and thrills from the sidelines who are flocking to the strips to see these fast moving cars in action.

Personally, I think such an activity is fine, if confined to these prepared strips for such action. They would have a tendency to let the enthusiast get it out of his, or her, system on a governed strip.

In talking with one of the youths the other night about a club here in Sedalia, he pointed out the benefits to those who would be members. He pointed out the safety angle and of the governing of such activities by the organization. The club will have rules and regulations governing the membership which will result in a member being dismissed if ever picked up by police for careless, drunken, or speedy driving on which charges they either are found guilty or try to evade the charge by forfeiture of a bond.

This all sounds excellent and, if it could be enforced, would be something in controlling of dangerous driving on the streets and highways.

But the question is, what results to the violators? What can the club or anyone else do if they are suspended? Their careless, drunken and speeding ways have not been corrected.

NEW RULING Equals Teams Before Start

MESA, Ariz., March 30.—The new major league rule forcing teams to cut down to 28 players by April 15 may keep well-stocked clubs, like the Yankees and Dodgers, from "stealing" four or five games in the opening months of regular play.

That's the opinion of new manager Bob Scheffing of the last-place Chicago Cubs, who feels that "the trouble with baseball today is that the majors control too many players."

The former manager of the Los Angeles Angels, 1956 Pacific Coast League champions, thinks the enforced paring of squads by the opening of the big league season gives a slight light to the poor relation clubs in the majors.

"You take a team like the Yankees or Dodgers, with more good players than they know what to do with—they'll have to lop off a number of men almost good enough to make the grade," Scheffing said today.

"That means they can't sneak these men in the first month and get winning performances out of them because opposing pitchers don't know how to pitch to them or the defenses how to play them."

"And while a strong club is using such almost-good-enough players, it can rest its proven talent for later on, teams like the Yankees and Dodgers were able to steal four or five games with their fat benches during the first months in past seasons."

Most clubs formerly carried between 30 and 35 players before the erstwhile May 15 date for trimming to 25.

"This new 28-player rule will help the minors right down the line," said Scheffing.

Fay Crocker, Net proceeds of the day were $64,050.41.

In the last five years, $542,750 in proceeds has been contributed to various golf charities and projects as well as to several of the nation's general charities.

Ft. Leonard Wood Retains 5th Army Basketball Title

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo., March 30.—(Special)—Paced by a brilliant array of former collegiate stars, Fort Leonard Wood's Hilltoppers basketball squad posted a 22-8 mark during the regular season and won its third Fifth Army championship in four years.

Coach Bert Optiz's Fort Wood five climaxed its 1956-57 campaign by reaching the quarter-finals of the All-Army double elimination tourney, only to be defeated by Fort Eustis of the Second Army, 96-89, last Thursday. Two straight wins over Fort Riley, Kan. the previous week, 89-62 and 105-72, enabled the Hilltoppers to permanently retire the Fifth Army tourney trophy.

Pacemakers to one of Fort Wood's most successful basketball seasons in history were former midwest all-Americans Ridley and Joe Bertrand. Ridley, for three years a standout at the University of Illinois, and Bertrand, one of the finest eagers ever developed at Notre Dame, topped the Woodsmen in scoring with 20-plus points per game averages.

A big boost to the Fort Wood five at the close of the season was the acquisition of Paul and Phil Judson, Illinois' famed brother combination. Reunited with his former teammate Ridley, Paul Judson tallied 24.5 points per game in the final 11 matches.

Cary and Kathy Oppose Nation's Golfers June 8

CHICAGO, March 30.—The sixth annual National Golf Day will give Mr. and Mrs. America a chance to shoot against the 1956 national champions on June 8, it was announced today by Harry Moffitt, president of the PGA, sponsors of the event.

On that day the USGA Open champions of last year, Gary Middlecoff and Kathy Cornelius, will be challenged by golfers across the nation.

Middlecoff will play his National Golf Day round at Iverness Club in Toledo, scene of the 1957 USGA Open. Mrs. Cornelius will play here during the Ladies PGA championship at the Churchill Valley Country Club in Pittsburgh.

Last year 75,112 men participated in National Golf Day, with 7,184 winners over 1955 champion Jack Fleck. A total of 7,117 women competed, with 3,339 winners over

'Name' Golfers, Winter Winners Will Vie in Masters Tournament

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 30.—The winners of virtually every tournament on the long winter golf tour will tackle a "summer" course next week in the 21st Masters tournament.

But when the golf-wise Georgians who stamped into this little city once a year speculate about the likely winner, you again hear such familiar names as Ben Hogan, Sammy Snead, Jimmy Demaret, Lloyd Mangrum and possibly Peter Thomson.

On the PGA schedule, the Masters is listed as the final event of the winter tour. But it's so different from the others that the touring pros might as well be starting over, along with the old-timers who emerge from retirement only for this event.

The Masters is a tournament with a unique flavor and a unique setting. The massive 6,990-yard Augusta National course, created by Bobby Jones on the site of an old nursery and glowing at this time of year with dogwood blossoms and flowering shrubs, makes the big difference.

Many winter tournaments are played over wide-open and often dried out courses where almost anyone can reach the greens and where the player who is putting best usually is the winner. Augusta National is a true championship test for the pros and top amateurs and, at the same time, a course where an ordinary player can steer clear of trouble and make a respectable score.

It is a favorite of President Eisenhower, who has a cottage just off the tenth fairway and who frequently visits here.

The course is in first class shape.

In 20 tournaments since the Masters was begun in 1934, no player in the limited fields ever has licked Augusta National. The highest winning score in a major pro tournament so far this winter has been 280. Only five players in the history of the Masters ever have beaten that score. Hogan set the tournament record of 274 in 1953. The next year he and Snead tied at 289.

It is a course that requires a lot of knowing before a player can score well and that's why the older players are given more consideration than the brash youngsters. Snead and Demaret each has won the Masters three times and Hogan twice. From 1947 through 1954 their domination of the tournament was broken only once.

Then in 1955 Cary Middlecoff broke through after ten years of trying and last year Jackie Burke nipped sensational young Ken Venturi at the finish. Middlecoff, now the U. S. Open champion, and Burke, the PGA boss, naturally must be included among the favorites along with such younger players as Jay Hebert, Billy Casper and Arnold Palmer.

Venturi, who nearly became the first amateur Masters winner last year but cracked up on the final round, will be back as a professional. He finished well up in the Bing Crosby and Palm Springs tournaments in California last January but hasn't followed the tour—partly because he isn't yet eligible.

'Gen. Duke' Cops Florida Derby In Record Time

MIAMI, Fla., March 30.—Gen. Duke, a husky son of the blue grass, put on a blazing stretch run today to win the $123,600 Florida Derby in world record-tying time for the mile and an eighth and soundly whipped the odds-on choice, Bold Ruler.

The brown son of Bull Lea, laying back while Federal Hill set the pace and Bold Ruler pursued him to the final turn, caught them both in the stretch and went under the wire a length and a half in front. The time was 1:46 4/5.

Bold Ruler finished second, only a head in front of Iron Liege, stalemate of Gen. Duke, Shan Pac was fourth and Federal Hill fifth in the smallest field ever to compete in this rich feature.

With a gay and colorful crowd of 24,409 cheering him on, Gen. Duke charged along the palm-lined course to tie the world record and smash the track mark in this major test for three-year-olds who will be running for racing's triple crown in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont.

The world record was held by Noor, Alidon and Swaps, all of them older than Gen. Duke when they made the mark.

able to receive prize money in PGA co-sponsored tournaments. He can take whatever he wins here.

The dapper Demaret, who'll be 47 years old in May, rates special attention this year. He already has won four tournaments on the tour. Jay Hebert is another double winner this winter. Other winners on the list of Masters eligibles include Doug Ford, Ed Furgol, Casper, Arnold Palmer, Dow Finsterwald and Bob Rosburg, Art Wall, recent victor at Pensacola, Fla., and Pete Cooper, St. Petersburg winner, aren't on the list.

The permanent Masters invitation list, which now has 70 names, includes all former winners of the Masters, the U. S. and British open and amateur championships and the PGA championship. Others qualify through membership in the Ryder Cup and Walker Cup teams on their performances in major 1956 championships.

Three names were added to the original 112 invitations when the former Masters champions voted to invite Mike Fetchick, the former open champions picked Dick Mayer and former amateur champions selected Dr. Frank (Bud) Taylor. Two more are to be named by the PGA after the Azalea Open at Wilmington, N. C., this week on the basis of their winter tour performances.

There should be a strong foreign delegation, too, headed by Australia's Thomson, winner of the British Open the past three years, and England's veteran Henry Cotton.

The tournament's directors never mention invitations to foreign players until they actually are on hand, but Cotton, who recently arrived, had said he was coming to America especially to play in the Masters and Thomson, who played here two years ago, has been on the American tour for a month.

Other foreign stars who have been playing in the U. S. include Australian champion Bruce Crampton, England's Harry Weetman and David Thomas, Canada's Al Balding and Jerry Kesselring and South Africa's Gary Player and Trevor Wilkes.

The number of actual starters usually is about 85, but with television commitments and the possibility of a record field this year, the tournament bosses decided to cut the field to the low 40 and ties after 36 holes. The main reason appears to be that Sunday's final is to be televised nationally (CBS) again this year. If weather should force a postponement, it

Palmer Takes 27-Hole Lead In Tourney

WILMINGTON, N. C., March 30.—Despite a shaky finish that saw him three-putt the last two greens, Arnold Palmer took the third round lead in the $12,500 Azalea Open golf tournament today, his two under par 70 giving him a 207 total for 54 holes and a two stroke lead.

The 1954 National Amateur champion, now a professional playing from Latrobe, Pa., replaced the leader through the first two rounds, Dow Finsterwald of Jupiter, Fla., who slumped to 73 for 209 and second place.

Fred Wampler of Indianapolis held third place with a 71 for 211 going into tomorrow's final 18 holes. He was one stroke ahead of Paul O'Leary of Bismarck, N.D., a 71 shooter today. The others appeared virtually out of the chase for $1,700 top money.

The 27-year-old Palmer, winner of the $7,500 top prize in the Houston open last month, is second on the latest official money winning list for the year with more than $10,000 in earnings.

'Dedicate' Scores Photo-Finish Win

BOWIE, Md. March 30.—Mrs. Jan Burke's Dedicate turned the tables on Chris Chenery's Third Brother today as he took command near the head of the home stretch and blazed home a nose victory over the Virginia-owned horse in a tight photo finish of the $111,150 John B. Campbell Memorial.

With a cheering crowd of 21,550 watching in sunny but breezy weather, Dedicate just managed to hang on in the final length of a mile to the wire for a pulse-popping decision.

DeMarco in Unanimous Welter Bout Decision

DeMarco weighed 145½, Boardman 142½.

Middlecoff Is Favored By Writers

ATLANTA, March 30—(AP)—Sports writers favor Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis golfer, to win this week's 21st Masters golf title at the Augusta National Golf Club. Thirty writers balloting in the Atlanta Journal-Constitution's annual Masters poll picked the Memphis dentist as the man to beat. Middlecoff piled up 48 points and received nine of the 30 first place votes.

Middlecoff won the 1955 Masters with a score of 279 and finished third last year, only two strokes back of Jack Burke who won with 289.

The poll scoring was on the basis of three points for a first place vote, two for second and one for third.

Sam Snead, who with Jimmy Demaret has captured three Masters titles, was second choice in the poll with 28 points. Demaret, winner of two tournaments on the current tour, placed third with 22 points. Ben Hogan, twice winner at Augusta, was fourth choice with 18.

Defending champion Burke, also winner of the national PGA crown last year, was rated sixth with nine points. In fifth place was Doug Ford who received 12 points.

Harvie Ward of San Francisco, winner of the last two U. S. amateur championships was the choice to take low amateur honors. The Augusta classic has never been won by an amateur.

Referees Charge Coach of Peoria In Name-Calling

DENVER, March 30—(AP)—Two referees at the national AAU basketball tournament said today that Warren Womble, coach of the Peoria, Ill., team invaded their dressing room and called them unprintable names.

This occurred last night, they said, immediately after Womble's team was beaten by the San Francisco Olympic Club 70-61 in the semi-finals of the tournament. The officials, Al Lightner and Thornton Jenkins, had called a technical foul against Womble late in the game. They said he yelled a name at them from the bench. Womble said in commenting on the incident today that he had no hard feelings against the officials. He said he did not agree with some of their calls during the game and told them so.

Lightner, a sportswriter at Salem, Ore., was involved in an altercation with coach Abe Lemons of Oklahoma City University at the NCAA cage playoffs at Dallas two weeks ago. Lemons accused the officials of "protecting" Wilt (The Stik) Chamberlain, Kansas All-American.

overall Missouri River Basin plan by virtue of its important contribution to flood control and improved streamflow in the Missouri and the Mississippi Rivers.

One of the nine authorized dams, the Pomme de Terre in Hickory County, Missouri, was put under construction last fall by the Corps of Engineers with funds voted by Congress for fiscal year 1957. This reservoir is scheduled to be completed and in operation by 1961.

People who are interested in the protection and the welfare of the Osage River valley, including the productive farms, the towns, and the recreational developments which have taken hold there, are encouraged by the start which is being made on this system of dams.

Kaskaskia Reservoir is the largest by far of any in the system and it would take its place as one of the largest in the lower Missouri River Basin. The projected dam site for Kaskaskia Bluff is about 2 miles upstream from Warsaw, Missouri, on the Osage River and about 1/2 mile downstream on the Osage from the mouth of the South Grand River. Here the reservoir will be in position to control, or bottle up when necessary, the flow of two large streams, the Osage and the South Grand Rivers.

The nine reservoirs in the Osage system (including the Marais des Cygnes over in the Kansas part of the basin) working together will control the runoff from 11,500 square miles, or a little over 75 percent of the whole basin.

From its position as the lowermost downstream of the nine reservoirs, Kaskaskia will directly control nearly 8,000 square miles, an area which lies downstream from the other dams.

The Kaskaskia unit is primarily a flood-control operation, in that no power generation is authorized or provided for. A moderate sedimentation reserve and conservation pool will be maintained, but practically the whole of the reservoir storage will be devoted to floodwaters which otherwise would continue downstream to inflict serious damage to properties on 3,600 acres on the shores of the Lake of the Ozarks and to over 23,000 acres of farm lands and various developments along the Osage between Bagnell Dam and the mouth east of Jefferson City. As the key or lowermost reservoir in the Osage system, Kaskaskia also will be in position to extend the effects of the combined reservoirs to reduction of flood damages on 150,000 acres along the Missouri River below the mouth of the Osage and to reduced stages in the Mississippi.

The gross capacity of Kaskaskia Reservoir, as presently planned, is a little over 4,000,000 acre-feet. The conservation and sedimentation pool, which will largely be in the Benton County portion of the project, will contain 122,000 acre-feet of water. This leaves the net reserve in the reservoir available for temporary impoundment of floods amounting to something over 3,900,000 acre-feet.

Some idea of the flood control capacity of Kaskaskia can be gained from the fact that its 3,900,000 acre-feet of reserve storage is considerably greater than the combined flood storage of the other eight units of the system.

The conservation pool of 122,000 acre-feet will have a surface area of about 12,000 acres. This will afford recreational advantages which can be developed by local government and enterprise.

At full-pool level, which would be reached on the rare occasion when the reservoir is called upon to hold back a master-size flood, temporarily impounded water will cover an area of about 164,000 acres. For the greater part of the time the water in the reservoir would be confined to the permanent pool of 12,000 acres.

In contrast to the flood-control aspect of Kaskaskia and the assist-upstream reservoirs, is the now well-known circumstance of low-water flow in periods of run-off deficiency. In this situation the conservation pool can be drawn upon for releases which will regulate and stabilize the flow downstream from the dam. This will mean a sustained, healthy flow from which many benefits can be derived by those around the Lake of the Ozarks and on down on the Osage and the Missouri.

In the most recent published report, House Document No. 549, printed in 1950 at the time the Osage Basin Plan was submitted to Congress, the benefit-cost ratio of the basin-wide plan was cited as $1.13 to $1. Obviously, in the 6 or 7 years since that time, there have been substantial increases in the costs of most every commodity, both material and manpower, and particularly in the construction field. The result is that the cost of the Kaskaskia project, if maybe he'll never tell you... but in the eyes of that boy of yours you're just about the greatest man who ever lived. And whether it's a trip the two of you take together... or something more important, like his college education... it's wonderful to have the money when you want it.

But where you save your money makes a difference. That's why, these days, people are putting more savings account dollars in Insured Savings and Loan Associations than in any other type of savings institution. You'll find the management of your Insured Savings and Loan knows where to invest your dollars so they'll be safe and bring you excellent returns. And—don't forget—your savings are insured up to $10,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

So start now to save the safe, progressive way.

LOGAN, W. Va. (AP)—Charlie Bias, retiring after 24 years as county jailer, figured his most vivid memory was a weekend in 1937 when 247 persons were jailed. It was so crowded that 58 men had to be put in the bullpen together. That meant standing room only — and frequent fights.

"The skirmishes kept my officers and myself busy trying to maintain a semblance of order," Bias recalled.

SAC's Command Center for War Is Independent Underground Unit

War Nerve Unit Is Three Stories Under Surface

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent
OFFUTT AIR FORCE BASE,
Omaha, Neb.—(NEA)—If Russian leaders could see what I have just seen, the threat of World War III would be ended, pronto.

I've just had a tour of the amazing new underground command center of the Strategic Air Command from where the first vital phase of World War III will be directed if the Russians are ever stupid enough to start it.

The underground command center gives maximum protection to SAC commanders and the heart of its vital communications network against enemy air attack.

But, far more important, by combining SAC's war plans, operations control system, latest intelligence data and secret new communications systems into one highly-coordinated center, the inherent time advantage which an attacker gains by surprise has been shaved to a matter of seconds.

Within something like 30 seconds after it is known that an enemy is making war against the U.S., orders will be going out from here directing devastating retaliatory strikes at that enemy's war potential.

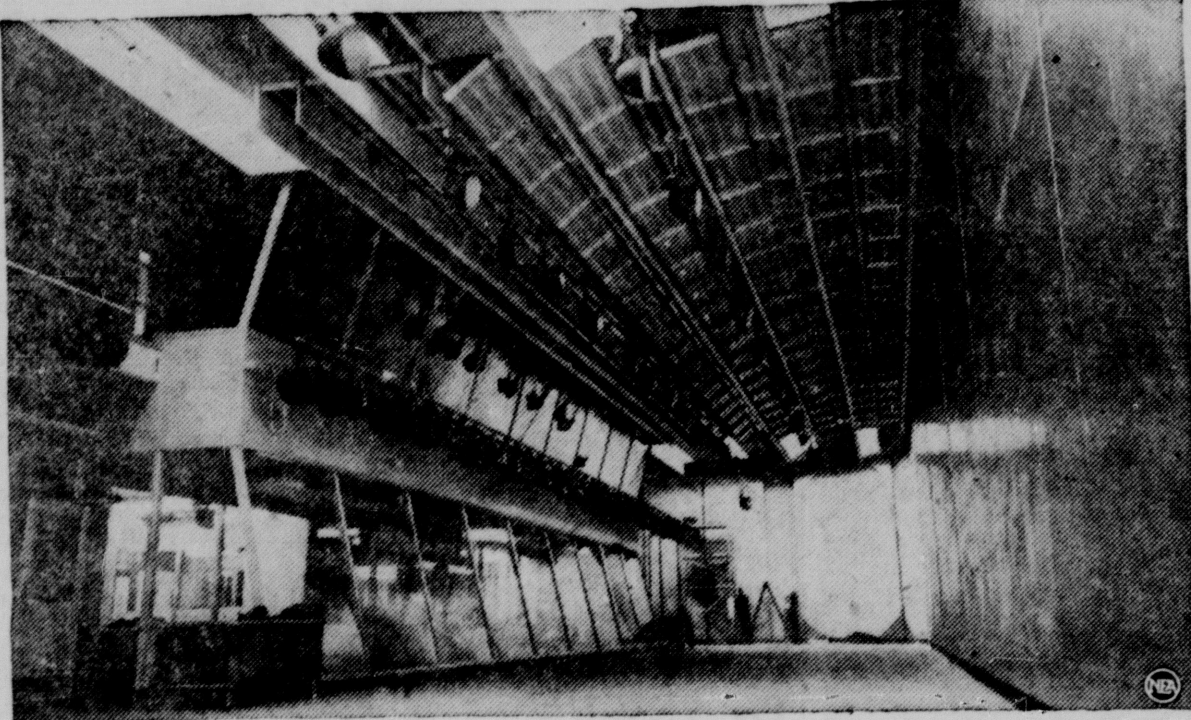

Before you ever get to the ramp leading to the underground command center, you must first be screened by three sets of tough Air Police who wouldn't let like pass without the proper identification and a badge with a red slash across it.

At the final entrance, tougher, armed APs make you sign a register, double-check your credentials and provide an escort who must stay at your side for the duration of the inspection.

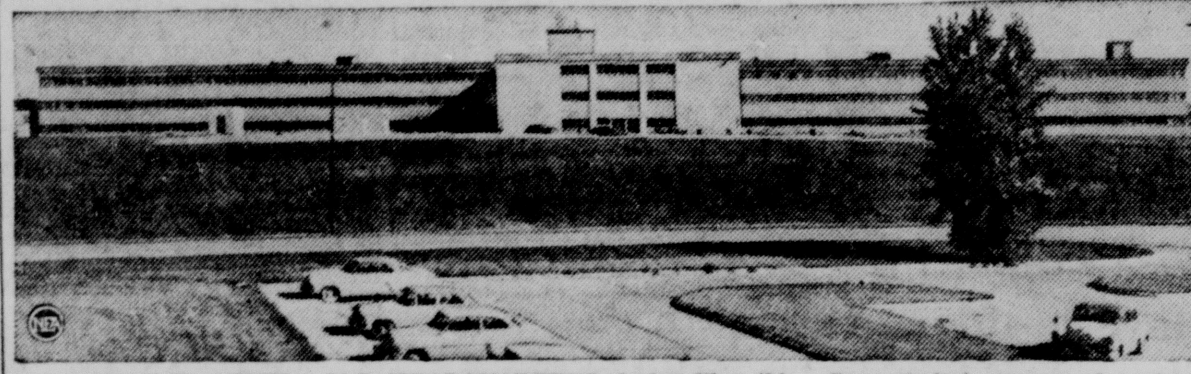

The steep concrete ramp leads you down the equivalent of three stories below the surface of Nebraska's parched earth, through four sets of thick, double, steel blast doors. You pass the decontamination room for those who aren't able to scurry to safety before getting some radiation from enemy bombs.

Only a direct hit by a large nuclear weapon could injure persons inside the command center. More than 15,000 yards of concrete were used in this underground structure, which has several acres of floor space.

If necessary, the center could keep operating, completely buttoned up, for more than 30 days. It has an independent water supply and is kept stocked with food. Three gigantic diesel engines can supply all power needs for more than a month, in an emergency. Any failure of Omaha's power supply automatically starts the center's generators.

AT GROUND LEVEL, SAC HEADQUARTERS looks like this. Beneath it is command center.

The most spectacular section of the underground command center is a large amphitheater — SAC's war room. Across one side are brilliantly-colored charts and maps, mounted on sliding panels. On one panel, for example, is a map of the world showing detailed global weather conditions, kept accurate to the hour. Another weather map gives long-range global predictions based on reports coming in constantly from all over the world. Such things as the speed and locations of the upper-air jet streams are plotted. This is important information to SAC's bomber pilots.

World-wide weather conditions at any moment would have a direct bearing on the war plans which would be put into effect in case of an attack.

On another panel is a map showing the exact daily status of SAC's forces, kept current by IBM calculators. It takes electronic brains to keep daily track of SAC's more than 3,000 bombers and 200,000 people scattered all over the world.

This panel shows at a glance how many combat crews are on leave at each base, how many aircraft might be having an engine changed and how many bombers are sitting on runways, ready to take off on a mission.

Another map shows the position of every SAC plane in the air at the moment, another important factor governing the war plans which would be ordered at any time.

Other charts and maps present a mass of secret information necessary to a commander directing strategic global air operations against an enemy.

Opposite this array of panels, on a glass-enclosed balcony, is where SAC's dynamic boss Gen. Curtis E. LeMay will sit and direct his big bombers in case of war. He uses it now to direct all of SAC's far-flung operations.

At the moment, workers are installing a 100-foot track just below Gen. LeMay's balcony on which will be mounted closed-circuit, color TV cameras.

When this closed-circuit TV system is completed, Gen. LeMay will be able to flip a switch at several points in the above-ground headquarters and see what is posted on the panels in the war room. Eventually, top commanders in the Pentagon will be able to do the same thing. The White House can be included in this network.

Directly below Gen. LeMay's balcony is the real nerve-center of SAC's elaborate system of communications, manned constantly by a senior control officer. These control officers have been bomber pilots and have had combat experience.

A red telephone sits in the center of this officer's huge desk, on which are mounted large boards of switches, flashing lights and microphones. It's a direct line to every SAC base in the U.S.

It's checked for operating order twice a day. Over these telephones will come orders from Washington to launch the retaliatory strikes against an attacker.

A switch panel with flashing lights puts the command center officer or Gen. LeMay in direct voice contact with every SAC base around the world, and with pilots of SAC planes aloft.

For example, Gen. LeMay was in periodic voice contact with Maj. Gen. Archie J. Old, Jr., when Old recently led the flight of three B-52s around the world in the record time of 45 hours and 19 minutes.

I heard the command center officer chat briefly with a base in North Africa, flip a switch and talk to Thule, Greenland, flip another switch and talk to a pilot flying over the Arctic.

At his position directly above this desk, Gen. LeMay can monitor these conversations and cut in any time with remarks or orders. A push button will cut in a tape recorder for a permanent record of any conversation.

In case of war this communications net will feed information to the huge wall panels to show Gen. LeMay, the Pentagon or White House the minute-by-minute progress of the air strikes. Other information coming in from all over will show the damage which the enemy is doing to the U.S. and its forces.

Knowing what they have in the SAC arsenal at the present, and TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Donald Mabius, 12, is proving quite a help to the sheriff.

On his way home from an ice skating pond here, he spotted a safe in a ditch. He told his father, who notified the sheriff. Investigating, deputies found a sledge hammer apparently used to burglarize the safe.

Almost in the same spot on May 4, 1935, Donald found $629 worth of postage stamps and 1,676 blank money orders stolen from a nearby branch post office.

Linen Closet Reveals That Gold Glitter Is Sprinkled On New Household Linens

By KAY SHERWOOD

A sparkling spring is predicted for household linens with the glitter of gold ablaze in the linen closet. The golden touch, already so well entrenched in other home furnishing fabrics, now brings a new glamor to sheets, towels, bath mats and blankets. It enriches the bride's hope chest as well as the homemaker's linen closet.

Just for good measure, gilt-touched closet shelf edgings show up to underscore the gleam from linens stored above. One shelf trim, for example, joins gold and aqua in a quilted leaf pattern against a white background. It looks considerably more expensive than it is.

If it has crossed your mind that shooting a goodly amount of metallic thread into a bath towel might make for a scratchy rubdown, put your worries away. Luxur yarns, used for this purpose, are newly finished to give them exceptional softness and high brilliance. Non-fading metallic threads can take the same treatment as other fibers in the same article — hand or machine washing or dry-cleaning.

You won't really need dark glasses to shield your eyes from the golden glare, but the use of metallic yarns in allover designs as well as borders is truly lavish.

In an all-wool blanket designed by Margaret Nelson, for example, gold threads are woven throughout in a plaid motif. Gold is played against a white or solid-colored ground. A featherweight summer blanket in washable orlon bound with nylon satin uses gold threads to point up the pastel stripes of its design.

Destined for many gift lists are superfine percale sheets with delicately embroidered borders of gold. Matching pillowcases are boxed with them.

Regal looking are some of the big, thick towels with gold and silver highlights. On one a huge gold checkerboard design crisscrosses the surface. On another, horizontal stripes of silver and gold shine against backgrounds of misty blue or green, yellow, pink or black.

Young homemaker stores sheets embroidered with soft, non-fading gold thread. Shelf edging repeats the gold touch.

Sprightly contribution to modern bathroom decor is an abstract pattern combining blocks of many colors on a white ground with gold or silver stripes. Unusual combinations of colors in these towels (for example: yellow, blue orange, cocoa and gold; light gray, charcoal, chartreuse, dark green, light blue and silver) suggest ready-made color schemes for the bathroom.

Twinkling like little stars, flecks of gold and silver shine from the depths of the pile of nylon and viscose bath mats and scatter rugs. Some are patterned in tweed effects, some in abstract designs, some in stripes and swirls.

Prices are moderate. Included in the long list of colors are the off-white, antique gold and aqua-marine shades that are enjoying such popularity in other furnishings.

Clobbered Cabs
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A visiting motorist almost put the St. Helen's Cab Co. out of business.

He ran off the road and into a parking lot. The car struck the rear of a cab, jamming it into another, then veered to the right and hit the side of a third cab.

It in turn struck a fourth cab. The accident put four of the company's seven cabs out of commission and sent the visitor to jail on charges of drunken driving, public drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

The Auxiliary presented their husbands with red carnation boutonnieres and Hurtt Pharmacy also gave a red rose to each Auxiliary member.

The dinner featuring venison was served buffet style. The venison was donated by Dr. J. W. Boger, who killed it while in Texas. Dr. A. J. Campbell gave the invocation.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Walter, Smith-ton, observed their golden wedding anniversary Sunday, March 24 at their home.

At noon a bountiful dinner was served to fifty relatives and friends and that afternoon open house was held. Despite the rainy weather sixty-two persons attended.

The home was decorated with baskets of yellow mums, roses, carnations, snapdragons and jonquils. A bouquet of yellow flowers and the anniversary cake decorated with yellow roses and the numeral "50" were on the lace covered serving table.

Mrs. Dorsey Walter, daughter-in-law, and Miss Anna Mae Walter, granddaughter, served cake and coffee that afternoon. Miss Mary Dillon was in charge of the guest book.

Mrs. Walter wore a black suit and flowered blouse complimented with a yellow rose and carnation corsage. Mr. Walter had a yellow carnation boutonniere.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter were married March 27, 1907 in Jefferson City and Mrs. Walter recalled that the day was a warm spring day with a little rain that afternoon. They are the parents of three children, Dorsey and Carl of Sedalia, and Mrs. Paul Renfro of Tucson, Ariz. They have ten grandchildren and four great grandchildren. ## Youths Give Closing Program Of Music Club

Steele Music Club was presented Wednesday afternoon when the youthful musicians of the city who received superior ratings in the Junior Federated Music Festival recently played and sang the number that won them honors. This program each year, when the talented youngsters perform, is always outstanding. Members of the Music Club have had an opportunity to see what the future holds for the club that

It's Your Play Tuesday

Because only city councilmen and school board members are to be chosen Tuesday, April 2, it is referred to as an off-year election date. City offices of chief of police, collector, attorney, magistrate, assessor and treasurer were filled last year.

Lacking acrimonious issues an off-year election dims political flamboyance.

Nevertheless the importance of any election should not be minimized. Apathy over councilmanic races in our four wards this year could very well play hob with present city administration unity in proceeding with firm and well-planned projects for community development. If there is any disruption of the progressive program of the present administration it will be entirely the fault of the Democrats who because of indifference fail to go to the polls Tuesday and support their own candidates.

There has been harmony and support and leadership in development of the over-all administration program for the growth and expansion of Sedalia. Some tangent experiences with no relationship to broader objectives have been the target of criticism. But there's no sense in tearing down the whole house because a rafter breaks loose.

Then, too, on Tuesday the voters should approve the $1.10 school levy. This is a must item, else the school budget will topple. There's been a lot of talk about supporting our schools. A healthy vote for the levy will be an expression that all the talk hasn't been hot air.

Two school board members are to be chosen, also, without contest.

Another important item facing the voters is the one for approval of a constitutional amendment increasing pay of state senators and representatives to $300 a month and giving them weekly mileage allowances. Missouri's lawmakers have been receiving the same $125 monthly salary since 1942. Often the low salary and meager expense cause able young men to shy away from the legislative field. In the last five years at least six legislators—all under 35—have thrown in the towel, declaring that representing the public and trying to make a decent living at the same time became a disheartening personal experience.

So, to the polls Tuesday to elect your councilman, approve the school levy, choose two school board members and raise the pay of Missouri senators and representatives.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Khrushchev's Son-in-Law Pays Visit

WASHINGTON—U.S. officials were greatly interested to learn that Soviet dictator Khrushchev's son-in-law, Alexander Startsev, walked unannounced into the offices of the National Agricultural Workers Union in Washington, D.C., the other day and started asking questions about American farm workers.

Startsev, whose official title is first secretary of the Soviet embassy, was accompanied by another Russian diplomat identified as Victor Komplektov. They explained that they represented "one of the embassies in Washington."

When NAWU President H. L. Mitchell asked which one, Startsev hesitated, then replied: "The Soviet embassy."

They explained that they would like to know about the problems of agricultural workers. Mitchell gave them some background on his small union which was started by southern sharecroppers in 1934.

"What," asked Komplektov, "is the composition of agricultural workers?"

"What do you mean by composition?" asked Mitchell.

"He means race or nationalities," explained Startsev.

Mitchell said most agricultural workers were Negroes in the south and Mexicans in the southwest. The dictator's son-in-law then wanted to know about the membership requirements. Mitchell explained that any farm worker 16 years old or over could join the union.

Startsev asked about the number of members and was told only 50,000 of the nation's 2,000,000 farm workers are organized.

"Why are they not in unions?" asked the Russian.

Mitchell explained that the workers were scattered and were not covered by protective legislation. That was one reason, he said, that union headquarters were located in Washington rather than in a more rural part of the U.S.

The two Russians asked a few more routine questions, accepted some union literature and started to leave. Mitchell inquired, as they started out the door, whether they were agricultural specialists.

"No," replied Startsev, who spoke fluent English. "We are interested in all agricultural problems."

Mitchell reported the visit to the State Department which was at a loss to explain it.

Note—Since Khrushchev took charge of the Kremlin, he has personally dealt with Russian agricultural problems, has demanded more crop production, and approved the exchange of Russian and American farmers in 1955. His son-in-law in Washington has the reputation of being a studious, hard-working diplomat. American air officials who have negotiated with him say he's a straightforward, tough negotiator.

Guest Editorial—

DES MOINES REGISTER: Value of High School Education. U.S. government officials have added a powerful financial argument to the many other good reasons youngsters should continue their education at least through high school.

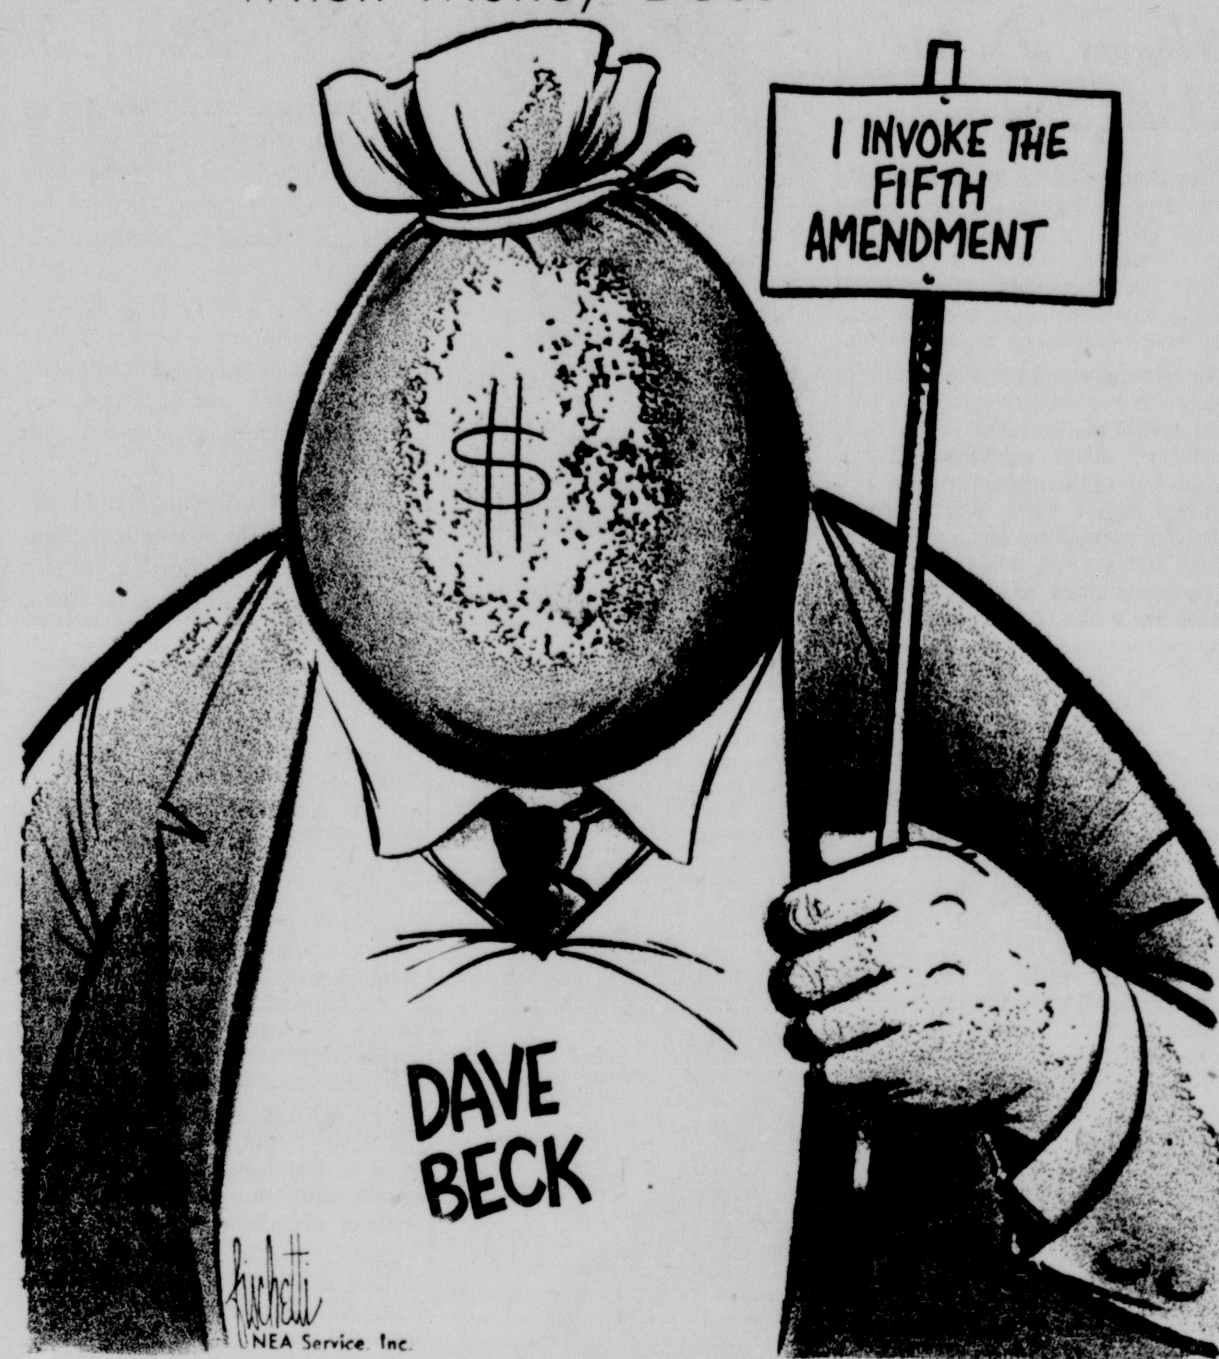

They point out that a high school graduate can expect to earn $50,000 more during his adult years than the person with only an eighth-grade education. He can expect $30,000 more in earnings than someone who starts high school and fails to finish.

Iowa has a fairly serious "drop-out" problem. About one out of five youngsters graduating from the eighth grade fails to graduate from high school. In the 1953-54 school year, the last for which figures are available, Iowa high schools graduated 26,272 students out of 32,714 eighth-grade graduates four years earlier.

The largest single reason for leaving school—given by 21 per cent of the students—was to go to work. Marriage accounted for 19 per cent of the dropouts and 8 per cent were "not interested." Only 3 per cent of those leaving school said they quit because of failing grades.

The government's figures make it clear that those who leave school for jobs are being extremely shortsighted. The few extra years of income cannot begin to compare with the financial rewards available to most high school graduates in later life. Those leaving school for marriage strike at the financial security of their children when they sacrifice the opportunity for a basic education.

When Money Doesn't Talk

Perspective

Oh, God, you gave me simple tastes
And glad for this am I.
For not a glorious moment wastes
As swiftly days go by.
No money can buy gems I hold,
I want no part of glamour,
No glittering things that turn stone cold
For which so many clamour;
Not for big names do I aspire,
For culture or for arts,
I'm only thankful you inspire
My glimpse in human hearts,
I'm grateful that you give me sight
To see beyond the footlights there
And give to me that wonderful light
That in their feelings I may share;
What e'er it is I am not bored,
I give myself as if I, too,
Were in this place and being scored,
I live what other people do.
I never sit as if entranced
With music that a master plays,
But smile as children play and dance
In their excited, fumbling ways,
I see the stars shine in their eyes.
I feel their mother's tension—pride—
And I feel, too, my own hopes rise
With something that is good inside.
I live in everyone I see,
And everything is very real,
What they may plan is part of me,
The efforts they put forth I feel,
I want to see them all succeed
In any project that they may start,
I like to watch the sprout of seed
As I look in another's heart.
The world is very big and wide
And built at such tremendous cost.
Yet naturalness too oft 'twill hide
With all perspective of it lost;
The artist holds before his eye
Something to measure things he sees
And finds only just so high
Buildings taller than forest trees,
Strangely, he's learned big things are small,
And pictures that will bring him fame
Are not of wealthy men at all
But humble men he cannot name;
He seeks the lines that come with age,
He looks for eyes with something deep,
Men who have lived life page by page.
Know how to laugh and love and weep,
The humble man, the pensive child,
And to the canvas does he give
A look into a human heart.

Which may, in time, merit a crown.

Hard Drinkers Most Prone To Contract Polyneuritis

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.

A correspondent asks for a discussion of what he calls "multiple neuritis." This is not much to go on, but I imagine it refers to polyneuritis, which is most commonly (but not always) the result of long and excessive use of alcoholic beverages.

Essentially, polyneuritis means inflammation and pain in several nerves, though the symptoms from such inflammation do vary from person to person. In general, however, the portions of the body supplied by the affected nerves show muscular weakness, wasting of the muscles, pain, tenderness and often changes in the sensations or feelings of the areas involved.

The amount of pain present can be severe or mild. Sometimes interference with sensation is so great that a pin can be stuck deeply into the skin without being felt at all.

When alcohol is considered responsible, it is somewhat uncertain as to whether the polyneuritis is the result of too much alcohol or the insufficient consumption of normal foods which so often accompanies the life pattern of the chronic alcoholic.

In addition to alcohol there are several other possible causes for polyneuritis. Most of the heavy metals such as lead, mercury, bismuth and arsenic can also produce polyneuritis. It occurs also in certain deficiency diseases, particularly beriberi, which is the result of a deficiency of some of the vitamin B elements.

Another vitamin deficiency disease, pellagra, may also lead to polyneuritis. In such cases the administration of the appropriate vitamin or vitamins may bring considerable relief.

Polyneuritis sometimes develops from general dietary deficiencies during pregnancy and in the presence of some general disease, such as diabetes or pernicious anemia. Infections may also produce polyneuritis. It is a frequent symptom of so-called rheumatic infection. It may complicate typhoid fever, influenza, scarlet fever, mumps and almost any of the well-known infections.

Rest in bed is usually needed not only because of the muscular weakness, but also because the heart may become involved. Serious deformities can develop because of the muscular weakness if the limbs are not supported by splints, sandbags or by other mechanical methods.

Polyneuritis is usually a difficult disorder to treat successfully. Removal of the cause, if it can be identified and managed, as it can in the case of alcohol or the heavy metals, is one of the first steps. It is generally advisable to administer certain vitamins and make sure that the diet is satisfactory. Some drugs appear to be useful.

However, the usual victim of polyneuritis cannot expect a quick cure and great patience is required on his part as well as that of the attending physician.

Odds and Ends
By News Staff

WHILE THE FAMILY was away a young woman thought she would mix up an upside-down cake and surprise them. She had never made an upside-down cake before and she was anxious to see how it would come out. Carefully she placed the pineapple slices in the bottom of the glass baking dish and then poured the batter over it. It looked grand and she left it in the oven after it had baked, even though she could hardly wait to see how it was going to come out. She just didn't have time because she, too, had to leave.

When she came home in time for dinner, her mother had taken the cake out of the oven and, thinking it was just an ordinary cake, made a nice thick marshmallow icing with streaks of chocolate through it and put it on the cake which was still in the baking dish. Well, it was good, but the girl was a little disappointed. After all, it was her first upside-down cake and she wanted to see how it was going to look on top when she took it out of the dish. She will probably label her next upside-down cake or take it out of the pan as soon as it is done.

Looking Backward...

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Over 1,000 visitors were here from Pettis and adjoining counties to participate in a Swift Day program at Convention Hall, Liberty Park. They were welcomed by George H. Trader, manager of the Sedalia plant, and other Swift representatives. Talks were given on produce on farms and a luncheon was served at noon followed by demonstrations.

1932

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ilgenfritz, who had been spending the winter at Los Angeles and other California cities, were expected home in April.

1932

A demonstration on multiple hitch attended by a large number of farmers was demonstrated under supervision of E. E. Brasfield, county extension agent, at the farm of Jason Chamerlain near Houstonia.

1932

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Roe, 1615 South Carr, returned from a visit at Los Angeles, Calif., with their daughter, Mrs. J. T. Douglas. En route home they made a stay of several days in Kansas City.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Capt. W. F. Logan received orders from Adjutant General Donnelly, Jefferson City, to build up the Sedalia Machine Gun Co., to full war strength soon as possible. There was room for 25 more men in the ranks and an effort was started immediately to secure them.

1917

The first registration for voters in the city of Sedalia was completed in the county courtroom, 4,284 having registered. Divided by wards it was First 1,131; Second 611; Third 1,213; and Fourth 1,329.

1917

Two houses on South Grand belonging to Henry Laupheimer were traded to Henry Ilmhauser for a 130-acre farm on the Smithton road. The land consideration was at $100 an acre.

Dim Prospect For Quick Approval of School Bill

By Esther Van Wagoner Tufty
Of Our Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — The Federal aid to education bill is in serious trouble.

At the beginning of the session, both Republicans and Democrats promised to pass the bill that now has bumped into a new economy-pressure generated by the record peacetime $71.8 billion budget and the old segregation amendment, which was to be eliminated by giving priority to the civil rights bill.

Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare is fighting to save the measure. This administration spokesman recently criticized the U. S. Chamber of Commerce for what he called "seriously misleading and inaccurate statements" regarding the bill.

Lawrence G. Derthick, the new U. S. Commissioner of Education, says its an insult to question the school construction shortages reported by various states.

Right now the House Education subcommittee is writing up the bill, which will probably be a compromise between President Eisenhower's request for an authorization of $1.3 billion for grants to states for school construction and the Democrat desire for $2 billion or more.

Chances for quick approval of any bill grow dimmer. Negro Congressman Adam Powell (D-N.Y.) has served notice he again will propose an amendment to deny any federal aid funds to segregated schools. Such an action would invite a southern filibuster in the Senate. It was originally understood that House leaders would call up the civil rights proposals first in an attempt to divert fire from the civil rights phase of the school bill.

Some members who favor the bill have told Speaker Sam Rayburn to delay action as long as possible until the headline attention is off the Eisenhower budget issue.

Congressman Augustine B. Kelley, who has reintroduced his Democrat-sponsored school bill of the last session, is aware of the difficulties it faces. The Pennsylvania Democrat, who is chairman of the subcommittee considering the legislation, says, "It would be shameful if this rich country could not 'afford' decent accommodations for the pupils in our schools."

It's More Blessed to Give, But Don't Hog the Blessing

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

One day when Grandma was visiting, Claire began to draw the picture of a daffodil.

Her little sister grabbed the yellow crayon. When Claire gave chase, she flung herself down on top of the crayon, screaming protest. The noise disturbed Grandma and Mother who said crossly to Claire, "What have you done to her this time?"

Properly interpreting the crossness as demand for a surrender of her crayon, Claire obeyed. Her mother said gratefully, "That's a good girl" and Grandma echoed, "Indeed she is!"

Gradually, this grownup approval of giving made it Claire's only moral value.

As a result, she is a pretty destructive woman. To keep her husband aware of what a giver she is, she wears herself out with overwork—and then complains about it. To keep her supply of thank-yous coming from her daughter, she exaggerates any favor she does for the girl while belittling everything her husband does. But the person who will suffer most from her bad training will be herself.

With advancing years, our ability to give is replaced by a need to take. If we've had no experience in grateful and gracious receiving, we become miserable, fretful old people that nobody wants to give to.

When we train a child to trust giving as his chief moral security, we train him for an unbalanced life.

So when we teach him the Christian doctrine that it is more blessed to give than to receive, we might add, "As this is true, we must always be careful not to hog all the blessedness of giving for ourselves. Other people have a right to their chance at some blessedness, too. When Jesus asked you to love Brother equally with yourself, he was telling you to receive from Brother as often as you give to him."

Between healthy people, love circulates in giving and taking just as in healthy bodies our blood moves in two directions.

I heard a distinguished psychoanalyst stress this exact point at the recent annual conference of the American Group Psychotherapy Association. Her name is Dr. Helen Papaneke. She said, "It is a symptom of neurosis to perceive selfishness and unselfishness as in conflict with each other."

Here Are a Few Rules To Keep In-law Harmony

A woman who has lived for 10 years with her married daughter's family writes:

"I know that getting along with others is more than just following a set of rules, however good they may be. But before I went to live with my daughter and her family 10 years ago, I did make a set of rules for myself which I have tried to follow. They have eased the way for me and, I think, for those who have given me a home. "Because they might help someone else, I am setting them down here.

"One. Always have the good manners of a guest, but don't expect to be treated like a guest.

"Two. Be helpful in ways, however small, that will benefit the family and lighten the load. Don't just look for the work you like to do or that which will pay off in attention and praise. Do what most needs to be done.

"Three. Take absolutely no part in arguments or heated discussions. If possible, get out of the way when an argument starts.

Never side with wife or husband or with child against child. Maintain strict neutrality.

"Four. Never wear a hurt look or adopt a 'Don't-bother-about-me' attitude. Nobody enjoys living with a martyr.

"Five. Learn to do things on your own. An older person's independence gives others more freedom.

"Six. Don't find fault with the younger generation. The older person who is constantly criticizing young people brings out the worst in them. Tolerance, approval, admiration and real liking bring out the best.

"Seven. Respect the privacy of every member of the family.

"Eight. Never give advice unless asked for it and then give it gently."

That's a good list of do's and don'ts for any parent who is moving in with a married son or daughter. They aren't the whole answer, but they are sure to help the person who has enough self-discipline to follow them.

Issue Was Long In Doubt

Senator's Disputed Portrait Will Be Displayed After All

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — They're going to hang that disputed portrait of Sen. Joseph S. Clark among the familiar faces of other Philadelphia mayors after all. The painting has had a dubious status since March 16.

That was when it was delivered to Mayor Richardson Dilworth's reception room and some of the mayor's official family and a smattering of art experts got first peek at the work of the sometimes unorthodox Franklin C. Watkins.

An "Oh, my God" was wrung from Dilworth as he gazed glassily at what associates told him was a likeness of his long-time friend and Democratic colleague, elected senator last fall after four years as mayor of Philadelphia.

Others were anguished too, and there was an outcry that "It ain't so much like Joe as it's like Hamlet." That impression was created by the pose, as dissimilar to the usual picture of an illustrious mayor as a bust of Mozart is unlike the craggy contours of Casey Stengel.

"It isn't traditional," cried the critics, pointing to the folded arms, the downcast eyes. "That's the way I saw him," asserted artist Watkins, "and that's the way I painted him." Clark himself, said, "I am content with it."

Watkins had his champions as well as his deriders, but neither their voices nor Clark's own sentiments were strong enough to keep the portrait from being turned with its face to the wall. Later, however, there was some relenting and the portrait was placed in what was described merely as "a temporary location."

Watkins, paid $2,000 for his work, yesterday offered to take back the portrait but only "to save the Philadelphia Art Commission embarrassment." But the commission said, no, adding that if anybody had been embarrassed it wasn't the commission.

"If I were engaged to do it again," Watkins made clear, "I would use the same approach." The commission agreed and adopted a resolution reaffirming its approval of the painting.

All that remains is for the commission, which is held responsible for such matters, to pick a permanent spot for the portrait in the gallery of mayors from colonial times onward. And to soothe the outraged sensibilities of the painting's detractors.

George Montgomery in a scene from "Seminole Uprising," an action packed Western type feature, filmed in color, that tells the story of the infamous "Black-Cat" gang that gave the U.S. Army trouble for two years. The companion feature, "No Place To Hide," a science-fiction thriller, stars David Brian and Marsha Hunt. Both features showing tonight and Monday at the 50 Drive-In Theatre.

Dan Dailey suggests reverse psychology to psychoanalyst David Niven to see if the "doc" can take it as well as dish it out in this side-splitting scene from "Oh, Men! Oh, Women," now at the Fox Theatre. Dailey, not liking the doc's effect on his wife, Ginger Rogers, suggests he have a whirl with Barbara Rush (right) Niven's fiancée.

Britain Seems to Be Site Of Imaginative Pranksters

LONDON (AP) — The policemen who tramp across Westminster Bridge look up frequently to see whether there is anything unauthorized hanging above Big Ben.

For the famous clock is the place where light-hearted students and pranksters like to dangle odd objects, such as underwear or Russian flags. With spring in the air, the hoaxers are coming out of hibernation.

There probably is no country like Britain for irreverent and imaginative pranksters. This season is starting well, but has not yet reached the sublime heights attained several years ago when a policeman was horrified to see a pair of trousers waving from Big Ben's flag pole.

How such dangerous climbs are managed is always a mystery. It took professional steeplejacks, with a lot of ropes and tackle, a full day to bring down the trousers. The tower is 320 feet tall.

The best performances so far this season have been reported from Oxford. The other morning there seemed to be something strange and displaced on the roof of Lincoln College. The building staff found a daintily laid table—cutlery, napkins and glassware all correctly laid out. The prank made no sense, but that is characteristic of these stunts.

Oxford police and many innocent citizens were fooled by another student enterprise. White stripes, in a sort of zebra design, are painted on pavements to indicate where pedestrians are supposed to cross streets. Several new "zebras" appeared the other morning and police, thinking the city engineer had painted some new ones, enforced the law at spots where students had made some unofficial stripes.

Scotland Yard hopes the hoaxers' enterprise this season will not quite match an episode London had to endure some years ago. Three hoaxers in overalls and with a truck full of tools drew up in Piccadilly Circus, a dizzy, busy traffic circle in the city's West End.

The three men in overalls unloaded a fence and blocked off one of the busiest traffic lanes. Then they opened up the pavement with pickaxes and dug a deep hole while traffic swirled about. The police thought the Department of Public Works was mending a sewer, or something.

Then the three young men went away, leaving their hole. The Department of Public Works was astonished, and the police monumentally irritated. The diggers were never found.

JERSEYVILLE, Ill. — State Highway Patrolmen Francis E. Neubauer and Everett Estes now know how it is to be left holding the bag.

They found a suitcase beside the road and opened it to find a gunny-sack filled with a strange object that moved. Cutting the string binding at the top of the sack, two cats leaped into the darkness and disappeared.

US Navy Estimates Construction of New Nuclear Powered Carrier at $300 Million

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)—Congress is being asked to approve construction of the biggest, most complex single weapon ever built. It will require the biggest sum ever appropriated for one piece of war hardware.

It's a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier and the U.S. Navy is asking more than three hundred million dollars for its construction.

The first atomic carrier will be longer than five city blocks, wider than one block and taller than a 25-story building. Its atomic reactors will have the capacity to generate enough electricity for a city of more than one million persons, in addition to driving the ship. The hangar deck, below the flight deck, will be larger than two and one-half full-size football fields and its air conditioning system will be more than enough for two Empire State Buildings.

If similar details could be told of the ship's nuclear propulsion system they would be far more astonishing. The ship will have eight separate reactors. This is for safety and to keep its power supply versatile.

Each reactor will be a pressurized water type, similar to the one in the Nautilus. But they will be far more advanced in design. It is claimed that the construction of the A-carrier's reactor complex will be a major boost to commercial reactor development.

The fact that only a few pounds of fuel will keep this enormous weapon ranging over the seas at high speeds for more than a year or two without refueling gives an idea of the tremendous scientific progress embodied in this project.

It has been said that the first atomic bomb cost two billion dollars. But most of that money went into research and plants, since amortized over succeeding atomic developments. Thus it can be said that the first atomic carrier is the most costly single weapon man has ever attempted to build.

The A-carrier will weigh 70,000 tons and have a speed of about 35 miles per hour. This is about the same speed and slightly more weight than the carriers of the Forrestal class. But the cost will be double.

"That sounds like a lot of money," admits Adm. Albert G. Mumma, boss of the Navy's Bureau of Ships, "but when you weigh the new defense advantages in range and effectiveness which we are buying in an atomic carrier the price is completely reasonable."

Mumma does not expect much opposition in Congress to the project, even though it is economy-minded this session. Thirteen million dollars has already been appropriated for the design and purchase of sections of the eight reactor chambers. Westinghouse has this contract.

"The most spectacular advantage of an atomic carrier is the increased steaming endurance particularly at high speeds which will be many times greater than that of conventionally propelled ships," Mumma says.

Its greater tactical flexibility will reduce its vulnerability to submarine attack. It will be able to extend sustained air operations from the present limit of three to five days. This results from additional aviation fuel which can be stored in the area where the ship's fuel would normally be stored.

"No smoke stacks will permit the installation of a new high-performance radar," Mumma also reveals. "This radar will permit detection of smaller targets at greater ranges and be of a type much more difficult to jam," he explains.

The absence of stacks permits installation of a huge antenna for this new type of radar, and gives other advantages. No gases are thrown out to discomfort persons on the flight deck or cause corrosion. Exhaust gases also reveal the position of the carrier from long distances for an enemy using special "sniffing" detection devices.

Much of the detail on other innovations and tactical advantages are secret. "But they add up to a tremendous gain in sea warfare," Mumma insists.

It has not been revealed whether this gigantic ship will be built on the East or West Coast. No name has been decided upon for it. By

Regional Library Notes

Annual Report Is Prepared By Boonslick For Sponsors

Along with Spring and what we hope will be April showers, comes a shower of "annual reports" compiled by various agencies and organizations. These reports burst forth like buds on the trees, and mainly demonstrate there is life and activity going on just as do the tree buds.

In some instances these reports do not stem from the inclination to compile statistics and enumerate activities, but rather from the obligation to do so. Such is the case with Missouri Public Libraries.

April 1 is the date by which county and regional libraries, through their boards of trustees, are obliged under law to report the "condition of the library and its services" for the last full fiscal year. Accordingly, the Boonslick Regional Library Board has submitted reports to three appointive bodies — the County Courts of Cooper and Pettis Counties and the City Council of Boonville covering the period Jan. 1 through Dec. 31, 1956.

Here is some of the pertinent data included in the current report: books available in the area — 38,556; number of regularly scheduled service stops in the area — 87; total circulation of book materials—174,473; number of films borrowed for use — 723.

In addition to the use of its own materials, the Regional Library has procured for its patrons 585 specific volumes from other libraries throughout the country during the past year.

This and other information pertaining to the library is included in the annual report. In the hope that clubs and organizations or individuals will have this information, the library has prepared mimeographed copies of the material which may be had for the asking.

This week's bookmobile schedule is as follows:

Tuesday, April 2 — Lamine, 9:30; Locust Grove, 9:45-10:15; Blackwater, 10:30-2; Blackwater Col. School, 2-2:30; Blackwater Drug Store, 2:30-3:10; Cotton Patch, 3:25-3:40.

Wednesday, April 3 — Sunnyside, 9:30; Tanglenook, 9:45-10:15; Pleasant Green (Hurt), 10:30-11; St. John's School, 11:15-1; Clear Creek Grocery, 1:15-1:30; St. Martin's, 1:30-2:30; Clear Springs, 2:45-3:15.

Thursday, April 4 — Georgetown, 9:10-30; Houstonia School, 11-2:30; Houstonia Downtown, 2:30-3:15; Range Line Church, 3:30-4.

Friday, April 5 — Oak Grove, 8:45-9:30; Walnut Grove, 9:45-10:30; Stokley, 10:50-11:20; R 1 School, 12:45-1:45; Dresden, 2:15-3:30.

Public Library Notes

Non-Fiction Books Were Popular In Recent Months

Self-improvement was the object of a large percentage of Sedalia residents who used the Sedalia Public Library in recent months.

Non-fiction books on religion, psychology, marriage and family, personality, mental health, and success on the job were among the most consistently requested.

Especially popular were such titles as John A. Schindler's "How to Live 365 Days a Year," Norman Vincent Peal's "The Power of Positive Thinking," and Frank Bettger's "How I Raised Myself from Failure to Success in Selling." Another title continually in demand was Alexander F. Osborn's "Applied Imagination."

Other titles which seemed to fill a need were: Guide to Straight Thinking, by Stuart Chase; "Love or Perish," by Smiley Blanton, and "Time for Living," by George H. Soule.

Two recent books on marriage have joined the classic "Successful Marriage" by Morris Fishbein.

One of these is Frances B. Strain's new book, "Marriage Is for Two" while the other is "Making the Most of Marriage" by Paul Landis.

Advice for reaching emotional and mental maturity as a way of staying young is given in "Don't Grow Old-Grow Up!" by Mrs. Dale Carnegie, the wife of the late psychologist. Three great rules for mental health outlined in the book are: know yourself, like yourself, and be yourself.

These, and many other books on related subjects are available at the library.

The word "cocksure" doesn't refer to a bird. It has been in the language since 1520 and refers to the cock or tap on a water spring.
